Canfield Advocates City Manager Form of Gov't to Kiwanians

Says Such a Form of Government in Kingston Would Give Maximum Service for Minimum Cost.

That the government of any city to be the best government for that city must be the one that gives the maximum service for a migimum cost, explained Palmer Canfield, guest speaker at the noon meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel on Thursday where he gave an address on "The Commission-Manager Form of City Government."

Mr. and Mrs. William Byrne will represent the Kiwanis Club at the international convention of the organization to be held in Los Angeles, Calif., the last of this month.

One guest was present at the meeting, P. J. Fox of Watervliet.

Paul Zucca, accompanied at the piano by Danny Bittner, was in charge of the musical program.

Pearl Carey, chairman of the program committee, introduced the speaker.

"Kingston," said Mr. Canfield, "now has what might be termed as the royal kingly form of government. Our mayor (throughout his address Mr. Canfield made it plain he was referring to the office and not the present mayor or past mayors as individuals) has as much power as any in the country, and more power than mayors in 95 per cent of the cities in the United States. Directly or indirectly he appoints almost all of the municipal help, excepting the aldermen."

Mayor Must Be Strong.

It was the speaker's contention that in such a position the mayor must be an exceptionally strong individual, that he must be able to resist pressure and that he must have a sense of humor and be able to compromise to obtain the most good.

Kingston, he explained, was a million dollar business, and the two objects of any administration trying to serve the people included reducing the taxes and bonded indebtedness.

Mr. Canfield outlined the financial history of the city, and made the statement that it was possible to have good government in Kingston with a tax rate which at a maximum would never be more than $40 per thousand.

There are now about 400 cities using the commission-manager form of government, said the speaker, giving a brief history of the inception of this form of municipal rule and its steps to present usage.

There has been some agitation for this form here, and whether or not such a course is followed it will be a good thing for the city because it will make the people take more interest in city government and want to find out what is done with their money together with what they get in return for it, he said.

In commission-manager form of government such as been proven successful, a number of commissioners are elected from the city at large. This commission elects a city manager who runs the city as a business. The commission elects from its membership a mayor, whose duties include presiding over the commission. In Kingston, continued Mr. Canfield, 10 per cent of the voters must ask for the presentation of the commission-manager form of government at the next regular or a special election, and should this proposal be successful, the new form of government would be tried at the election the year following.

This Plan Better.

"This plan is not perfect, but it is better—it will eliminate politics to a large degree, and will serve the people more efficiently," said the speaker. It is his belief that under such a form of city government, the voters and those elected would be in closer touch and would thus be of greater benefit to both.

Following are some of the points in favor of the commission-manager form of government as outlined by Mr. Canfield:

The manager should be a trained man with experience in solving municipal problems and in efficient administration. He would have no outside business interests. He would have no local political affiliations.

The manager with his tenure of office and salary dependent on accomplishment will choose his heads of departments for ability and special qualifications only.

The Civil Service employes with an assurance of a permanent policy, relieved from the necessity of participating in political campaigns, with promotion on merit rather than by influence and relieved from the pressure for special services by political leaders and city officials, will devote themselves to the public service and the plain citizen will be recognized as never before.

Centralization of authority in the manager insures thorough cooperation and coordination of departments.

One of the first moves made by an experienced city manager has been the adoption of a scientific program for the development of the city.

As the members of the council who are chosen from the city at large will be relieved of the petty detail now loaded on the board of aldermen, a high type of citizen will be willing to serve on this purely legislative board as a public duty and privilege.

The pernicious effects of petty partisan and local policies will be largely eliminated.

A city manager, unhampered by the necessity of shaping his budget to fit the supposed demands of the electors so that he or his party may win at the next election, will prepare it in ample time so that it may be approved and so that the tax rate may be fixed and the first installment collected early in the year.

The long tenure of office contemplated for the city manager insures continuity of administration policy that cannot be acquired by elected mayors who hold office for only a short time. This feature is most important as it will produce more efficient and economical conduct of the city's affairs.

The city manager retaining his position indefinitely will build up his organization and maintain it so his practices will be understood by his subordinates.

It is not claimed the city manager plan eliminates politics. The city manager plan does, however, eliminate politics from the administration.

The city manager plan will not automatically reduce taxes, but every dollar spent will produce a dollar's worth of value.

Each councilman or commissioner must assume equal responsibility for the proper conduct of the affairs of the city. He cannot shirk it for there is no division of responsibility.

Relief From Heat Promised as Much of Nation Swelters

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—Relief from the heat wave under which the State swelkered for the past two days moved across New York today from Buffalo where before noon the thermometer dropped from 82 to 65 degrees. A southwest breeze, off Lake Erie was responsible.

At other points in the state the temperatures were:

Rochester, 83 at 9 a. m. and still rising.

Syracuse, 89 at 9 a. m. and rising.

Albany, 86 at 11:30 a. m. and rising.

Westchester county reported higher temperatures than for corresponding hours yesterday when mercury climbed to 92, the warmest June 8 on record.

Yesterday throughout the state was the hottest the weather books show. Buffalo attributed four deaths to the heat and Rochester one. Prostrations were numerous.

Thundershowers tonight are forecast and a general drop in temperatures.

By The Associated Press

Sizzling hot record breaking temperatures baked vast stretches of the eastern half of the nation today, bringing reports of deaths that approached the century mark.

And while some portions of the affected areas, notably the extreme southern and eastern parts of the Great Lakes region were enjoying moderate relief from the devastating effects of the week's intensely high temperature readings, the East saw no prospect for lower figures until tonight when local thunder showers may ease the situation.

The nation's metropolis — New York—suffered yesterday with a record-breaking June 8 temperature of 92, with one heat death and two drownings, but it was in the middlewest where the death figures mounted.

Illinois alone counted 22 dead in three days of the heat wave. Eighteen of the fatalities were in Chicago, where the thermometer shot up to 97—a new all time record for a June 8—and then began to recede, with a drop of ten degrees promised for today.

Drownings were common throughout the affected sections as residents took to the streams and beaches. Indiana listed four drownings; Kentucky five, Wisconsin four; Baltimore one. In addition Indiana reported eight dead from the heat itself.

The heat belt extended all the way from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Seaboard and the sunny South had its share, Nashville, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., reporting one dead each, with no immediate relief in sight. New England was blistered with temperatures that ranged from 90 to 93, with Boston baking under the higher figure, a June 8 record for this point.

Denies Romance With Elliott Roosevelt

Texas Girl Says "We Just Happened To Meet"—Mrs. Roosevelt Declines to Comment on Reported Romance.

Dallas, Tex., June 9 (AP).—Miss Ruth Googins, 25-year-old, attractive Fort Worth brunette, declares there is no romance between her and Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President.

Her statement came after Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, flying to Washington, D. C., after a short visit with Elliott on the Pacific coast, declined to comment on the reported romance, saying:

"I really couldn't say anything about that. You see, Elliott still is married."

Young Roosevelt, general manager of a west coast airline, has established residence in Nevada so that his present wife, the former Elizabeth Donner of Philadelphia, may sue for divorce on grounds of incompatibility. He could not be located immediately for comment but previously had declared there was no "triangle element" involved.

Mrs. Roosevelt stopped briefly in Fort Worth last night. Early in the day, at Los Angeles, she had disclosed that her son and his wife planned a diverce. Her disclosure, made as she left a hotel to take a plane for the national capital, was immediately confirmed by Elliott.

Miss Googins, a Wellesley College graduate, said her introduction to the President's son was in Dallas and that they had been invited to several gatherings in Fort Worth. Then she added:

"I think it is too bad to have all of this stirred up about nothing. We just happened to meet."

Young Roosevelt stopped in Fort Worth to attend a rodeo last March, enroute to Tucson, Ariz.

Miss Googins said she did not see Elliott's mother either when the first lady passed through Fort Worth enroute from Washington to California nor when she stopped there on her return trip.

The Dallas News, in a copyrighted article, said "The President's son, soon after meeting Miss Googins, went west but returned several times to Fort Worth to spend the week-end. He was seen much in Miss Googins' company during those visits."

Miss Googins said she had not seen him in "five or six weeks" and that to her knowledge, he had not been in Fort Worth in that time.

Miss Googins' father, the late John B. Googins, was for many years Texas manager for Swift and Company.

Regents Papers Are Ready for Shipment

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP).—Heavy locks grated and steel doors swung aside today as the first of the state's 3,00,000, regents examination papers were removed for shipment to 1,300 schools.

The contents of the papers are secretly guarded, and the consignment for each school is shipped in a locked metal box. This is not to be opened until June 19, the day the examinations begin. A key to each box is sent the principal. The only other key remains in the possession of the Education Department.

What's in the papers? Only trusted members of the education department are supposed to know. It is a serious offense for any one to examine the papers before examination and inform students of the questions they will be asked.

Boys have been sent to jail for breaking into school rooms where the examinations were kept, in order to forearm themselves against the questions. No pupil has completed his school education in New York until he has passed the examination for high school seniors.

Dr. Avery W. Skinner, director of the examination division, has direct charge of the papers. Although they are called "regents examinations," the board of regents actually has little to do with them.

The questions are prepared by committees of teachers chosen from the state at large, passed upon by education department examination supervisors, and printed in a shop in the basement of the big white building in Albany.

The printshop is almost as carefully guarded as the United States mint.

From here the papers are taken by elevator to the "question room" on the third floor. This room is protected by steel-grilled doors, secured with double locks. Only examination supervisors are admitted.

Ellenville Electric Co. Has New Policy

The Ellenville Electric Co. "will make immediate changes in its policies and practices which will mean a new deal for the electric users and merchants of Ellenville," according to a statement credited to C. D. Raymond, secretary of the company, published in the Press this week.

It is stated that the company will devote itself entirely to the job of distributing and selling electrtical energy and will leave to local business men the task of developing and expanding the use of electric service in the community, by inaugurating a program of cooperative merchandising through local dealers.

As the first step in the new plan, according to Mr. Raymond, the Ellenville Electric Co. will dispose of its interest in the Ellenville Construction Co. When that is accomplished the Construction Co. will leave the premises of the Electric Co. and operate on a par with other merchants selling house-wiring and appliances in the village.

The Electric Co. will continue to carry out general promotional work, but local merchants will make the direct sales, including installation, servicing and advertising of specific appliances.

Dead of Injuries.

Batavia, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—The death toll of the storm which swept through western New York and Ontario Wednesday mounted to six today as Frank Seligman, 55, superintendent of streets in Attica died from injuries suffered when he was struck by a falling branch.

Blunder in Sills Case Freed Him, Was Rearrested

Some One Inserted Wrong Date in Information Lodged Against Harry Sills by Officer Roedell and Trial Ended Abruptly—New Warrant Sworn Out and Hearing Adjourned to June 15.

Because some one in drawing up the information sworn to by Officer William T. Roedell charging Harry Sills, proprietor of the Crystal Garden on central Broadway, with disorderly conduct, inserted the date of the occurrence as on May 19, when it should have stated May 26, the trial of Sills was brought to an abrupt close in police court this morning when Corporation Counsel Chris J. Flanagan, who appeared for the officer, withdrew the information and Sills was released.

His freedom, however, was of short duration for a new warant was immediately sworn out charging disorderly conduct and a new information fixing the date as of May 26, was filed with the court. Sills was placed under arrest on the new warrant and arraigned before Judge Culloton and entered a plea of not guilty. The hearing was adjourned to June 15.

The court room in the city hall was crowded to the doors this morning by several hundred men who had gathered to hear the evidence in the case. Sills was represented by Attorneys Robert J. Howard and Frank W. Brooks, while Corporation Counsel Flanagan and Attorney William A. Kaercher appeared for Officer Roedell.

After the usual preliminary motion to dismiss the complaint and discharge the defendant made by Mr. Brooks and denied by the court, Officer Roedell was sworn as the first witness.

Under questioning by Mr. Flanagan it soon developed that there was a conflict of dates as to when the alleged disorderly conduct occurred. The information stated May 19 and the officer said it was a week later on May 26.

A motion to amend the information by inserting the date May 26, was made by Mr. Flanagan and denied by the court. Mr. Flanagan then stated he would withdraw the information. Mr. Brooks moved to dismiss the defendant. The court granted Mr. Flanagan's motion to withdraw the information, and denied Mr. Brooks's motion to discharge the defendant.

With the withdrawal of the information the case against Sills automatically dropped, much to the disappointment of the large crowd who had expected to be entertained by the testimony.

Sills furnished bail for his appearance in court on June 15.

$133 Award Made In Supreme Court

The jury in the Abraham Miller vs. Minnie and Benjamin Steinhorn action for goods sold and delivered reported to County Judge Traver Thursday afternoon. A verdict for plaintiff in the sum of $133 was returned and Judge Traver then adjourned county court until June 19.

Due to the fact that supreme court is also in session attorneys could not move cases for trial in county court. Cases now on the day calendar in supreme court come under the strike off order and Judge Staley has ruled that these cases must be tried and disposed of as they are reached or they will go off the calendar. When Judge Staley adjourned supreme court Thursday until Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock the following cases were on the day calendar:

No. 100, 105, 48, 25-A, 96, 107, 108, 111, 34, 15.

An action brought by Frank Tozzie against Charles E. DeGraff, et al., a negligence action, was discontinued by consent on condition that the plaintiff execute and deliver to defendant a release from all liability and that the defendant execute and deliver to plaintiff a similar release. There was a counter claim in the action. Peter H. Harp appeared for plaintiff and Robert Jablin for defendants.

The action brought by Peter F. Holland of West Hurley against Frederick A. Danker, an action to recover $80 for trees sold defendant, was settled prior to the noon recess. Augustus Shufeldt appeared for plaintiff and Fitzsimmons O'Keefe appeared for defendant.

Cordell Hull And Ramsay MacDonald Have Private Talk

London, June 9 (AP).—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, head of the American delegation to the world economic conference, and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, had a private talk lasting forty-five minutes after luncheon today at the home of Ray Atherton, counselor to the American embassy.

Considerable secrecy surrounded the luncheon. Where Mr. Hull had been was not revealed until after he had returned to conference headquarters. It was stated that the men renewed their Washington acquaintance. Whether the war debts were discussed was not disclosed.

The meeting between Mr. MacDonald and the American secretary of state took place after a newspaper interview in which Mr. Hull struck out vigorously at what he described as attempts by "minority groups" in various countries to divert attention from the real purpose of the conference to relatively minor issues.

Hull, facing a roomful of American and British reporters at his hotel in his first press conference in England, said that in view of the magnitude and difficulties of the economic problems facing the parley he does not consider it within the functions of his delegation to go outside a well-defined list of subjects outlined in the formal program for discussion.

He spoke out emphatically when asked about a London newspaper story directing attention to his reference to the Irish Free State as an Irish "Republic" when he spoke at Cobh en route to England.

This reference caused some discussion because of Ireland's relations with England and republican sentiment in Ireland.

"I have no doubt that minority groups in every country will be sitting up nights trying to divert attention to some wholly slight consideration and thereby attempting to divert the work of the conference from its real purpose," he said.

Hull definitely ruled out war debts as a subject for consideration here, saying that he would not presume on any subjects which already were not on the program of the conference.

BUSINESS CERTIFICATES ISSUED BY COUNTY CLERK

Angelina Principe of 440 Washington avenue, Kingston, has certified to the county clerk under the assumed business name law that she is conducting a business under the name and style of The King Crown.

Philathea Picnic.

The Philathea Class of the Albany Avenue Baptist Sunday School will hold its annual picnic at Forsyth Park Monday.

Hottest Day of Year Finds Kingstonians Minus Coats

Sultry Night With Temperature at 71 Degrees Turns Into Blistering Hot Day With Temperature in Shade at 96 Degrees at 1 o'clock and Steadily Rising—Possible Relief Seen—Exodus of City Folks Expected.

Kingston baked today in one of the hottest early June days on record and the warmest so far this year. Starting with a temperature at 71 degrees last night the thermometer rose steadily during the early morning hours to reach 91 degrees in the shade at noon by The Freeman thermometer in Rondout. At 1 o'clock the temperature read 96 degrees in the shade, and was still rising. Temperatures in the sun were well over a hundred on the Strand, one place registering 106 degrees.

Thursday night was one of the most sultry and warm so far experienced this year, and many people were unable to sleep soundly but tossed about in their beds until tired nature brought sleep.

Soda water fountains and refreshment places are all doing a good business during the warm weather. Iced drinks are in great demand and the weather is making the iceman smile as the demand for ice is increasing.

While no official records were available concerning temperatures for years gone by, save those recorded in The Freeman, a comparison may be drawn from a year ago when the readings were; High—72; Low—46. Ten years ago the readings were: High—61; Low—58. Five years ago readings were: High—70; Low—60.

Relief from two possible sources was promised to the sweltering inhabitants by nightfall. Official weather predictions stated that "possible thunder showers" were on the way. Buffalo reported a cooling breeze sweeping in from Lake Erie with a moderate temperature. This breeze blowing eastward was looked upon as a possible means of relief within the next 24 hours.

People seemed well aware of the heat and were keeping in the shade as much as possible, there being no heat prostrations reported at an early hour this afternoon. Although a number of persons visited nearby resorts to seek relief by swimming, there have been no drownings.

The hot weather is expected to bring thousands into the mountain regions from New York city. Traffic conditions are expected to be heavy, and roads will be heavily patrolled to insure the safety necessary for heavy crowds.

Grand Jury Gives Report To Justice

Resolutions Filed Thanking Those in Charge of Grand Jury Work—Found Jail in Good Condition.

With its report handed up to Judge Staley in supreme court Thursday afternoin the grand jury filed resolutions of commendation of county officials. The members of the grand jury started out in May, at the opening of the term, but due to the lengthy trial which engaged District Attorney Cleon B. Murray in county court it was necessary to adjourn sessions of the grand jury. Until the close of the Quick murder trial in county court the grand jury was unable to function. With the termination of that case and the conviction of Anton Baessler and Michael Conner Mr. Murray then took up the work with the grand jury.

In addressing the jurors Thursday at the time of the filing of the report, Judge Staley said that it had been a long time since the grand jurors started out on their duties. He thanked the members of the grand jury for their services in behalf of the people of the county and discharged them from further duty.

The resolutions filed with the court are:

The duties of the grand jury in attendance at this May term of the Supreme Court have been completed and at this time the members of the grand jury desire to place on record their appreciation of the courteous treatment which has been extended by the various county officials during the sessions of the grand jury.

There were a large number of cases presented before our body for consideration by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and his assistant, N. LeVan Haver. Members of the grand jury desire to convey to both these officials their appreciation of the manner in which these matters have been presented. The matters presented to the grand jury for consideration had been carefully prepared, required witnesses were sworn and by able examination of these witnesses by both Mr. Murray and Mr. Haver our duties were made comparatively easy. While facts necessary for a fair determination of cases presented before the grand jury were brought forth by the careful and able examination of the prosecuting officers of the county, still at all times the utmost courtesy was extended persons appearing before our body. For the able manner in which these public officials have guided our body we desire to express our thanks. To William P. Glass, grand jury stenographer, we also desire to extend our thanks for his very competent services.

An inspection of the county jail has been made as well as the county court house and other property in charge of Sheriff John H. Saxe. We found the county jail in excellent condition, well taken care of and clean. The kitchen where the food for the prisoners is prepared is in a clean and orderly condition and the food served the prisoners appears to be of good quality and sufficient. The jail and court house property which is in custody of the sheriff appears to be well cared for, and we commend Sheriff Saxe and his assistants for the manner in which public property entrusted to them has been cared for.

Dated June 8, 1933.

Treasury Issue Is Oversubscribed

Washington, June 9 (AP).—The treasury's first offering of securities since the gold payment clause was officially cancelled, has been oversubscribed five times and officials hailed this today as evidence of the country's confidence in the government.

To big subscriptions, the books on the $300,000,000 offering are now closed, but for two days longer bids for securities in blocks of $10,000 or less will be received. Secretary Woodin had announced he would accept all of these regardless of how much the total exceeded the actual offering, and last night he said large numbers of small investors already had taken advantage of the offer.

Bids for five billion dollars' worth were indicated from the preliminary returns of the Federal Reserve Banks.

Kills His Wife, Her Mother and Sister

New York, June 9 (AP).—A ten-cent bread knife cut its way today to a triple tragic solution of Raymond Irizarry's "in-law" problem.

As a screaming quarrel in a little East Side flat reached its height, Irizarry, 33-year-old laborer and man of the house, reached for the knife.

"I am tired," he said to his wife, "of supporting your mother and sister on the money I make."

He stabbed the mother-in-law, Mrs. Julia Vizarrondo. She stumbled out on the landing and died. He plunged the knife into the abdomen of his sister-in-law, Cecilia, 25. She fell dead.

Then he attacked his young wife, Ricarda. She ran screaming into a neighbor's flat and died of her wounds.

Irizarry, still holding the knife, ran into the street. As he plunged along madly, a shouting crowd followed him—at a safe distance. A policeman lunged toward him. He sidestepped, darted into a hallway and stabbed himself in the chest. He is not expected to live.

Policemen entering his flat found his three daughters—the oldest four years—sleeping on their cots.

Sales of Eyeglasses Taxable.

Albany, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—Sales of eyeglasses will be taxable under the new one per cent retail sales tax law, according to a ruling made today by Mark Graves, president of the state tax commission. There will be no tax, however, on the fee charged by oculists for their professional services.

Oil Monopoly Plan in France Hits Americans

Paris, (AP).—A state oil monopoly which would drive American and other foreign companies from the French market is being studied by a committee of the chamber of deputies, to which it was referred after a stiff debate culminating in a vote of confidence in the Daladier government.

The monopoly, proposed by the Socialist party, would place all importation and refining of oil and distribution of gasoline in the hands of the government.

American Share Shrinks.

Until 1931 a half-dozen American companies furnished France with more than half of all the petroleum products she imported. This business amounted to about $62,680,000 in 1926—a large slice of the total American trade with France.

Since then France has been buying greater quantities from Russia and Rumania and America's share diminished from 53 per cent in 1930 to 36 per cent in 1932.

Oil is not produced in France and since the war successive governments have sought to free the country from complete dependence on foreign sources.

Opponents Decry Monopoly.

Foreign companies do business under licenses granted in 1928 for 20-year periods. On the basis of these long-term permits, costly establishments have been built.

This fact was evoked in chamber debate by adversaries of the monopoly who claimed that indemnities to American and other companies, in case the licenses were revoked, would be costly to the state.

They also said that 200,000 men would be put on the state pay roll by such a monopoly.

The committee indicated it would study the question at considerable length before bringing in a report.

ANCIENT EGYPTIAN BUDGET REVEALED BY TOMB RECORD

Cairo, (AP).—The tomb of the controller of finances of Pharoah Khufu, builder of the second pyramid about 3,000 B. C., has been found by Professor Selim Hassan near the fourth pyramid.

Inscriptions on the walls revealed that the Egyptian budget of that period totalled about $10,000,000.

The tomb was 15 feet below the surface. On top of a large sarcophagus in the burial chamber was a small casket containing face powder with a large scarab on one side and an alabaster head-rest on the other.

Besides the sarcophagus was a small offering-table, holding numerous daggers and pieces of pottery.

The mummy was in a poor state of preservation. A heavy gold bracelet was on the left wrist, a massive gold circle on the left ankle and a string of semi-precious stones around the neck.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—Decision of Senator Bratton of New Mexico, red-haired and scholarly, to leave the senate for a seat on the federal bench rather reverses the usual thing in this respect.

HERBERT PLUMMER

Judges in the past have shown a keen liking for getting into the senate. And Bratton's decision to leave, when his present term is not up until 1937 is rather strange.

Glance down the list of a few of those now in the senate who left high places on the bench for the senate.

Wagner of New York is an outstanding example. He was a justice in the appellate division of the supreme court of his state when opportunity to run for the senate presented itself. He took it and has been enthusiastic in his new job ever since. There have been reports that an effort was made to persuade him not to run for reelection last November and that he turned the suggestion down cold.

Others Too

There's Logan of Kentucky, who was chief justice of the highest court in his state when elected to the senate. Logan has intimated that he is not particularly happy in the senate, but he is sticking on just the same.

George of Georgia was sitting on the Georgia supreme bench when he resigned to run for a seat in the senate.

King of Utah and Hastings of Delaware were both state supreme court justices before they became senators.

In going to the bench, however, Bratton is returning to an old love. He resigned nine years ago as justice of the New Mexico supreme court to come to the senate.

Supreme Court Rumors

Incidentally, President Roosevelt's selection of Bratton for a high place on the federal bench again has revived speculation as to probable future changes in the United States supreme court during his administration.

Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas is frequently mentioned in such conversations.

Four of the supreme court justices are eligible for retirement now. They are Brandeis, 77; McReynolds, 71; Sutherland, 71, and Van Devanter, 74.

The President might have opportunity to exert a wide influence on the court through his power of appointment before his administration comes to a close.

SHOKAN

Shokan, June 8.—Harry Davis, one of Kingston's hustling young business men, was a caller in the village center Wednesday morning.

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Dumond of Olive Bridge, who on Monday, June 5, celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary, have the best wishes of their many friends in Shokan and Ashokan. The doctor has served the people of the reservoir country faithfully for more than 30 years. The Dumonds before removing to Olive Bridge, made their home in Ashokan.

Several young men from the twin villages who went to Woodstock Monday to get jobs at the gypsy moth control camp, were turned down, it is reported, though two applicants from Samsonville, in the western part of Olive, are said to have secured work.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barringer of the north Boulevard on Monday, June 5, quietly celebrated the 32nd anniversary of their marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Barringer, who have spent practically their entire married life in this section, have a host of friends in Olive who join in wishing them many more years of happy married life.

On June 10, 1879, the death took place here of Samuel Windrum. Funeral services were held in the Shokan Dutch Reformed Church on the 12th. Mr. Windrum's children were John, Thomas, Samuel, Jr., Robert, William, Sarah, Agnes and Elizabeth, the last named being Mrs. Elizabeth Greer, now a resident of Kingston.

Lester Lawrence, local baseball star, played with the Stone Ridge team in the Marbletown aggregation's game with the Rondout Athletics last Sunday.

Joseph S. Hill, who died at his home in Kingston Tuesday morning, had a number of friends among the older residents of the north reservoir section where he formerly was well known. Mr. Hill was a member of one of the pioneer families of Shokan and during his long residence here he had formed a large acquaintanceship throughout Olive and neighboring townships.

There were 19 members and three guests present at the June meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Reformed Church, held on Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Frank Barringer, president of the society. At the business session it was decided to hold a strawberry supper in the church hall on Wednesday evening, June 14. Committee chairmen appointed for this affair were as follows: Kitchen, Mrs. William Tuceling; dining room, Mrs. C. A. Winchell; clean-up, Mrs. August Pfaus. Refreshments served to the ladies by Mrs. Barringer consisted of fruit cups, homemade cake, coffee, and a large quantity of fancy assorted cakes from the Longyear Bakery of Phoenicia.

On Sunday, June 9, 1901, the death took place of Daniel Angevine, well-known resident of the west side of the Esopus creek. Funeral services were held on the 11th in the Baptist Church. Mr. Angevine, whose home was near the Bakeman brook, was a sawyer by trade, having been employed in the steam sawmill of the late Zadoc P. Boice. He was a brother of William Angevine, for many years a farmer in the Brown's Station section.

George White of Phoenicia was a business caller here Wednesday.

The annual picnic of the Shokan school, which was to have been held next Friday at Forsyth Park, has been postponed to Friday, June 16, on which day it is hoped the auto ride, picnic and movie show features will be enjoyed by the pupils, teacher and parents, as planned.

Victor Dunnagan is quite seriously ill at his home on the upper Boiceville road. Mr. Dunnagan, following an attack of the measles, developed pleurisy and is now under the care of Dr. Lambert of Woodstock.

A herd of 62 registered cattle at Berea college in Kentucky averaged a pound of fat a day during a herd test there.

"BARBERRIES" CRY HEARD BY EGYPTIAN LAW

Cairo, Egypt, (AP).—No more will cries of "baisbeah" be heard in Egypt, for the government has banned one of the most famous aspects of the ancient land.

Following the land of Turkey, begging is to be broken up by a law passed by the council of ministers.

Egyptian beggars have earned for their country the unenviable reputation of being one of the most disharmonizing countries in the world for tourists.

Many of the wretched creatures, authorities say, have been exploited by organized gangs.

Wicks Suggests Work In Catskills

Senator Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston, representing the 25th district in New York state, in a letter to Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne, suggested and outlined work to be done in the forests of the Catskill Mountains that may result in three camps of the Civilian Conservation Corps being established in this region.

The correspondence between the senator and commissioner was as follows:

243 Clinton Avenue,
Kingston, N. Y.,
May 29, 1933.

Commissioner Lithgow Osborne,
Conservation Department,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Commissioner Osborne:

Under date of May 18, you answer my letter addressed to Governor Lehman with reference to work to be done by the Conservation Corps. You asked in that letter if I had any suggestions as to projects in my part of the state on which men from the camps could be employed and I offer for your consideration the following suggestions:

Enlarge and improve existing camp site in Woodland Valley, Devil's Tombstone site, the site just above Edgewood, the camp site about 11 miles west of Big Indian, camp site on Bushnelville Road, the camp site on Mink Hollow road near Willow.

Improve conditions about North Lake at Kaaterskill.

Improve site of approximately 5,000 acres of land near Chichester owned by the state and known as Tiskilwa Park.

Build roads to control forest fires on mountains, principally owned by the state, such as Slide, Hornell, Wittenberg, Panther, Hunter, High Point and Tremper Mountains, similar to the control roads which exist in the Adirondack Mountains.

Improve existing trails through mountains, especially trail leading to Hunter Observatory Tower, Bellayre tower at Pine Hill and Mt. Tremper Tower at Phoenicia. Also remove fallen timber from state owned lands on Slide and Hornell Mountains.

I trust you will find your way clear to act favorably on these suggestions, for in my opinion the Catskill Mountains for a number of years have been considerably neglected and action on these suggestions offered will considerably improve our mountains.

Yours very truly,

A. H. WICKS.

Conservation Department,
Albany, N. Y.

Hon. A. H. Wicks,
243 Clinton Avenue,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Senator Wicks,

Your letter of May 29 suggesting projects to be accomplished by the Civilian Conservation Corps in the Catskills, is received.

I appreciate receiving your suggestions, and you will be interested to know that I am suggesting projects which will permit the establishment of two or three of these camps in the Catskill region.

Very truly yours,

LITHGOW OSBORNE,
Commissioner.

WESTMINISTER GUILD MET MONDAY EVENING

A meeting of the Westminister Guild was held at the home of Miss Helen Beeres, Monday evening, June 5.

The guests of the evening were Mrs. McVey of Freedom Plains who is secretary of Young People's work in North River Presbyterial, also Mrs. Andrew Lent of Highland, secretary of missionary education of the same Presbyterial.

As Mrs. Lent has had large and varied experience in conducting Young People's organizations, she was asked by Mrs. McVey, to suggest and present to the girls, certain projects which might be an aid to the Guild in their church and missionary life.

Mrs. Lent gave a very interesting and informing talk, designed to be an inspiration to greater service and usefulness.

A social hour followed, during which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls June 8—Miss Ewa Swarthout was a guest of the Misses Margaret and Kathryn Steen over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Howard entertained a New Brunswick Seminary friend at the Reformed parsonage one day the past week.

Miss Marie Dutcher was a week-end guest of the Misses Hunsinger and Ruth DeMund.

Mrs. Crispell of Kingston is caring for Miss Mary C. Van Wagenen who is ill.

Victor G. Parrell of The Clove was a caller in the past Tuesday.

Harry M. Burnham spent a few days in Rochester, attending the 156th annual conclave of Knights Templar, State of New York. He returned home on Wednesday of this week.

Mrs. Preston Church is to teach at The Clove school for the coming year.

Children's Day services will be held in the Reformed Church on Sunday, June 11, at 10:30. An interesting program has been arranged and everyone is most cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Edwards and Mrs. Esther V. Deyo of Kingston motored out to see Miss Mary C. Van Wagenen Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Stanley Steen has been helping Mrs. Preston Church a few days.

The Ladies' Aid Society of High Falls Reformed Church will serve a strawberry shortcake supper in the church basement Wednesday evening, June 14, at 6:30.

The pastor of the High Falls Reformed Church will be installed Wednesday, June 28, at 8:15 o'clock, in the High Falls church. Further plans will be announced later.

Alice May is home on her summer vacation.

Miss Bessie Feinberg of New York city was recently home on a short vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Churchill are making their home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Hornbeek. Mrs. Churchill, who was brought up here, has a number of friends who are glad to welcome her back.

Wessel Brodhead has been quite busy of late looking after the cemetery grounds of which he has charge and cutting the lawns for different parties.

Workmen are oiling the road through the village.

At 12 noon every day the fire gong is rung, so everyone may know the correct time. At first people not knowing about it thought there was a fire somewhere in the vicinity.

CLINTONDALE PUPILS PRESENT TWO PLAYS

Clintondale, June 9—On Wednesday evening the seventh and eighth grades of local school very successfully enacted two plays in the Grange Hall. The play was entitled "Meddling" and had the following cast of characters:

Milton Parker, the husband ..... Myron Ronk
Mother-in-Law, Mrs. Morton ..... Miss Grace Houston
Mother-in-Law, Mrs. Parker ..... Miss Dorothy Ackhart

The second play entitled "Raspberry Red" has the following cast:

Jared (Red) Sims ..... Philmour Terwilliger
Mother Sims ..... Helen Fowler
Father Sims ..... John Angelo
Ione Sims ..... Joan Geenen
Telty Sims ..... Doris Conklin
Jack Adams ..... Earl Nace
Bobbie Adams ..... Richard Nace
Carol Clark ..... Rose Capozzi
Mrs. Clark ..... Dorothy Thompkins
Rev. Dunn ..... Russel Coy
Mrs. Dunn, his wife ..... Vera Atkins
Hulda, the maid ..... Helen Pollazzo
Philip Briggs ..... Raymond Conklin

Mr. Craw was assisted at rehearsals by Miss Laura Bernard, teacher of the first and fifth grades of the school. Both plays were greatly enjoyed. The congratulations of the whole community go to the children who so ably took their parts.

The first coal from Hocking valley in Ohio was called "stone coal" by the blacksmiths, to distinguish it from charcoal.

FRENCH CO-EDS.

French co-eds, says W. F. Hoyt, instructor in French in Syracuse University, have much more freedom than girls in American universities. When the French girl is old enough to enter a university, she is considered old enough to direct her own affairs, and therefore the school authorities give her no supervision.

These comparisons are always interesting, but there are usually more points involved than meet the casual eye. There are fewer co-eds in any French university than in any American co-ed college—fewer actually in numbers, and fewer in proportion to the men. They are probably a little older than our girls, more of the bas bleu type, such as our college girls of forty or fifty years ago. That is to say, the French girl who makes the effort to go to college takes her whole situation in it with a pretty thorough serious mindedness. Our girls work, and well. But they now take going to college more as a matter of course, and many girls go for a year or two who take it lightly.

The interesting thing about our girls, especially to any parent who has tried to bring them up to a gradually increasing independence and responsibility, is their growth in the four years. They leave home young girls still. They come home self-reliant young women. Colleges understand this. They throw safeguards around the freshman which are not needed by the senior. The freshman needs a little help in the transition; the senior feels herself responsible not only for herself but for the college. All girls must make the transition from girlhood to womanhood. There is no safer or happier way to make it than under the understanding supervision of their elders in any good American college.

PEACE VS. COUPONS.

A pamphlet dealing with the activities of international armament firms was issued a few months ago in London. It revealed, among other things, the fact that Sir John Simon, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Neville Chamberlain all owned shares in one of these firms. Sir John Simon was disturbed by the discovery that the concern, through some of its subsidiaries, had been taking an active part in arming the Far East. He disposed of all his shares, and it is possible the other prominent men involved may feel impelled to get rid of theirs.

A news item from Paris tells of a 60-franc dividend on common stock declared by Hotchkiss & Co., one of the world's leading munitions firms. Hotchkiss also manufactures automobiles, but last year was a hard one on that branch of its business. Its profits for 1932 came entirely from big orders for perfected rifle-machine guns for naval, land and air forces.

There are a number of companies in the United States which make steel, automobiles or some other harmless products which also do a profitable munitions business. Says The Nation, in a recent editorial: "It should be illuminating if some enterprising peace detective in this country could ferret out and print the names of those Americans who lift one hand in favor of peace and clip munitions coupons with the other." The problem of bringing peace to a genuinely war-weary world is not a simple one.

A little burial plot on the Bowery, second oldest Jewish cemetery in the United States, was the scene of Memorial Day services honoring those Jews who showed their patriotism in the American Revolution. Fifteen of them were buried there. Some were privates or lieutenants in the Continental Army. There lies the rabbi, Gershon Mendas Seixas, who was one of fourteen ministers participating in the first inauguration of Washington. Some of them helped supply the Revolutionary forces. One, Jonas Phillips, after serving as a private petitioned the Constitutional Convention in 1787 for the removal of sectarian reference in the oath of office. One, Benjamin Jacobs, was a member of the Continental Congress in 1776. So goes the list. Jews are not new in America. The strength and beauty of their ancient faith is built into our very foundations.

Paris has returned to the styles of the late nineties with formal evening gowns of net and lace, slim to the knee, then billowing out and trailing on the floor for a few inches behind. There is low-cut decolletage, and many have taffeta foundations under their many flounces. Ruchings are coming in, too, and feather trimmings. Mother can now bring out the ancient ostrich or marabou boa from the handbox in the attic and have it made over for daughter's latest knock-out gown. The Mayas used to wear feather trimming, too. And make-up boxes have been found in Crete. Is the world so modernistic, after all?

How To Control Cough.

When something irritates the lining of the nose, a good sneeze usually gives relief. An irritation of the lining of the intestine stimulates the muscles of the intestine into action and the offending substance is pushed down the intestine and out of the body. With it often is considerable liquid, and the condition is called diarrhoea.

Similarly when you have a cough. Something is irritating the throat or the bronchial tubes and the cough is an effort on Nature's part to get rid of the mucous or other substance that is causing the irritation.

Thus we find coughs in catarrh, bronchitis, tuberculosis and asthma. But there are times when the coughing must be controlled or the individual may become worn out or open up an old or resting condition by the continual coughing.

The usual method of getting rid of a cough is to use an expectorant, as it is called, which makes it easier for the patient to cough up the mucous.

However as Dr. P. Lohfeldt, Leipsig, points out, there are times when the expectoration doesn't control the cough and it must be controlled by the patient himself without the use of drugs. The aim should be to limit the cough to a few hawks that are really necessary, for many patients make the mistake of coughing too much.

As you know coughing is caused by first a tightening or closing of the throat and then a sudden or explosive opening. Thus coughing can be controlled by not letting the throat close—air tight—and as the throat is slightly open the cough comes out without much explosion. This can be done by the patient forming the letter S as the air comes out.

If the irritation is more severe, the cough can be controlled by short rapid breaths—in and out—so that the throat gets no chance to close.

If this doesn't control the cough, then the method many have found helpful in church, concert hall, or theatre may be used. This consists in keeping the throat closed just at the time it wants to open to let out the cough, by forcing air from the lungs up against the throat.

Remember, coughing is usually necessary to rid the throat and bronchial tubes of any irritation, but the above methods may be used when coughing must be controlled.

MAN-MADE "MOUNTAIN" AS MELBOURNE MEMORIAL

Melbourne, Australia (AP).—That a man-made "mountain" be built near the Melbourne war memorial on the occasion of the forth-coming centenary celebrations of the state of Victoria has been suggested here.

It was proposed that each citizen of Melbourne should contribute one cubic foot of soil to the "mountain," which would later be covered with trees.

About 3,600 different parts of the world also would be asked to send soil.

Mountain Laurel in Full Bloom

Shokan, June 8—The mountain laurel is in full bloom here, being especially attractive along the Hogsback ridge where many acres of woodland are covered with the showy green, pink and white combination. There is also much laurel on the city's forest preserve, as may be seen from a trip around the boulevard.

During the three years the Century of Progress Exposition maintained an employment office, more than 100,000 men and women applied for jobs.

By the World FORGOT

A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: The one bright spot in Nicholas Boyd's tragic fall from stardom in the movies is luminous and glamorous Iris Dean whom Georgie Bancroft has forced upon him. And he has dismissed them with a shrug. Nicholas has signed the hero once too often, and a scarred face, a lame and cancelled contract are his reward. Even Fernie Boyd, his wife, has left him to sail for his native England alone, and in his gloom Georgie's well-meant manoeuvrings on the best horse made no impression. But now he has turned up at the inn in the village where Georgie lives with her domineering and violent uncle.

Chapter 11
GEORGIE'S CALL

IN the morning Georgie took a walk down the village.

She had offered to help Mrs. Lovelock about the house as she had always done before she went to America, and had been bluntly repulsed.

"I've managed without you all this time, and I can go on managing," was all the thanks she received.

"It hasn't been very long," Georgie reminded her. "Six weeks is no time at all."

"It seems like six years when you're left to do everything for an ungrateful man who's never sober," Mrs. Lovelock retorted. "Not that I'm complaining, Heaven knows."

"It sounds rather like it," Georgie said. She slipped down from the table where she had been sitting swinging her legs, and walked out of the house.

It was a dull morning, with a suspicion of mist hanging about the trees and fields which seemed to speak of heat to come later in the day. Georgie walked along slowly, her eyes very thoughtful.

Nicholas Boyd would probably still be in bed, she decided. She hated bed herself, it always seemed such wicked waste of time; besides she was always afraid that if she overslept herself she might miss something good.

Not that anything very much ever happened in the sleepy little village, but all the same perhaps some day it might and then if she was asleep in bed, how would she be able to participate in it?

She wondered which room Mrs. Spears had given Nicholas at the Boar's Head; Georgie knew all the rooms. There was one where Queen Elizabeth was supposed to have slept; it was all old rafters and still contained a high four-poster bedstead.

Georgie's uncle said it was all rot about the Queen having ever slept there; he said that if she had occupied half the beds she was supposed to have done, she must have spent her entire life going from one inn to the other. At any rate, the Boar's Head was very old; it had a secret passage (blocked up now) and one or two old fireplaces.

Mrs. Spears had done her best to preserve its antiquity; most of the furniture was antique, and last year when increase of custom had made it necessary to build out the old dining-room, she had insisted on having it done "in keeping," as she expressed it.

Georgie thought it was a pity Nicholas had not told her where he intended to stay; she might have helped him by telling him which was the best and most comfortable bedroom, and they might have travelled down together and shared the same cab up from the station, which would have been cheaper. She wondered what he would say when he discovered that he had walked right into the enemy's camp, herself being the enemy.

Perhaps he would at once pack up and go somewhere else, and that again would be a pity.

She sighed and quickened her footsteps.

Trouvé was lying on the flagstones outside the Boar's Head when Georgie turned the corner.

MRS. SPEARS had told her that years ago old stage coaches had rattled up over those flagstones and had deposited be-powdered dames and be-ruffled gentlemen at the door of the Boar's Head. She declared also that Nelson had once spent the night there on his way to Portsmouth, accompanied by Lady Hamilton.

As she drew nearer, Trouvé raised his head and looked up, then when she spoke his name he waved a welcoming tail and rose slowly to greet her. Georgie went down on her knees and put her arms round him. He wasn't much of a dog if one was particular about points; his head was too big and his legs too long, but Georgie loved him.

"Some day, when I have a home of my own, I shall keep a dozen dogs," was one of the things which Georgie promised herself.

When Trouvé had licked her all over, they went into the Boar's Head together and straight across the low-ceilinged, black-raftered hall to Mrs. Spears's own sitting-room.

Georgie opened the door without knocking.

"I've come back," she said, by way of apology.

Mrs. Spears rose from a paper strewn desk. She was certainly as Mrs. Lovelock always described her "one of the painted ones," for even at this early hour of the morning she had a complexion the like of which could not even have been rivalled in Hollywood, and her hair was of that brassy shade which the unenlightened mistake for gold.

But she was a kindly soul, as Georgie knew well enough, and if she was artificial, she was at any rate unaffected and honest.

"Well, I am glad to see you," she said, and bending from her superior height she gave the girl a resounding kiss.

"I heard you were back," she said. "Your uncle was in here last night. Well, and how are you?"

"Very well, thank you. I had a lovely time."

"I'll bet you did," Mrs. Spears said heartily. "You're looking fine. And have you lost your heart to anyone?"

Georgie shook her head.

"And nobody has lost theirs to me," she said quaintly.

"Which is all to the good," Mrs. Spears declared. "Time enough for you to think of a husband in another ten years. By the way, I've got a gentleman staying here who must have come over on your boat as you both arrived yesterday. Mr. Nicholas Boyd."

Georgie nodded. "Yes, he was on my boat," she said. "Is he going to stay long?"

"HE'S taken the rooms definitely for a month, bedroom and sitting-room. Funny he should come here of all places," she said; her eyes searched the girl's face with sudden suspicion. "He hasn't come after you by any chance, I suppose?" she asked with a twinkle.

"Not by any chance," Georgie said firmly. "I don't think he likes girls very much, and anyway he's married."

"As if that makes any difference," Mrs. Spears mocked her. "The married ones are always the worst, in my opinion."

"Well, he isn't," Georgie said. "He's been ill, you know."

"I know, and a fine mess he's made of his face, hasn't he? And him that was so handsome."

"It's the sort of scar that fades in time," Georgie said quickly. "And anyway I never mind scars myself."

"That's because you haven't got any," the landlady of the Boar's Head asserted. "If your face was all smashed up like Mr. Boyd's, you wouldn't be too pleased about it, you mark my words."

To change the conversation she asked how her uncle had been behaving during her absence.

"Just the same," Mrs. Spears said comfortably. "It's a marvel to me he isn't dead. Last night he was here till we closed, and then I had to get Alf to walk home with him."

"I know. I heard them come in," Georgie said.

"It's a thousand pities," Mrs. Spears went on. "And your uncle quite the gentleman. It's hard on you too."

"Oh, I don't mind," Georgie said. "It's no use worrying—it's no use worrying about anything; it doesn't help. Which room has Mr. Boyd got?"

"The one you like—that looks over the garden," Mrs. Spears told her. "And the sitting-room next door. He said he wanted to be quiet, and he'll be quiet enough there; a bit too quiet, I should say, after the life he's led. Are you going to wait and see him?"

"Oh, no," Georgie said in sudden fright. "He doesn't know I live here. I don't think he'd be very pleased if he did, so I hope you won't tell him."

"Not me. I've enough to do to mind my own business, but I thought as you'd called in, perhaps you wanted to see him."

"I want to see him right enough," Georgie told herself with a sigh, as she walked home again. "But that isn't the point."

Of course they would be bound to meet sooner or later, and then he could not be rude and pretend that he did not know her. Her hand went deeply into her coat pocket and closed over his cigarette case.

In the meantime she could wait.

Georgie reviews her prospects tomorrow, and is not thrilled.

RIFTON

Rifton, N. Y., June 8—The 4-H Drum Corps and 4-H Club girls and boys who are in the operetta, "Sun Bonnet Sue," are invited up to Ithaca at Cornell University to give their show. They will hold a supper on Friday evening, June 23, in Rifton Hall to help pay their expenses to Ithaca. The college is allowing them some money for part of the expenses. There will be a bountiful and substantial meal.

The Rock School 4-H Club attended the play given at the Tillson School by the Tillson 4-H Club Tuesday evening. The Tillson Club made a splendid showing in its club work and the yell was full of pep.

George Teilier opened a barber shop on the premises of Miss Anna Divine, located in the village.

ILLUMINATING GAS CAN BE IGNITED WITHOUT FLAME, HEAT, SPARK OR CHEMICAL 6-9-33

Diplomats, usually meticulous about boundaries, rights and so forth, slipped up when Norway seceded from Denmark in 1814. Among the territories to be considered was that of the Faeroe Islands, which is populated largely by Norwegians; but the islands were left entirely out of the negotiations, and remained under Danish rule.

Although the islands are Danish possessions, the inhabitants call themselves, not Danes nor Norwegians, but "men of the Faeroes."

Strange as it seems, on the shores of the islands cannon are still trained toward the sea to guard, as they did many years ago, against pirates who once infested the waters.

The plant, grown into a valuable American crop, which produces neither food, shelter, clothing, drink, nor ornament, is the tobacco plant.

A physical phenomena, absorption will cause illuminating gas to light without the application of heat, flame or any other agency, when a reactive metal—finely divided platinum, for instance—is held over the jet. Hydrogen is absorbed, which causes the metal to heat and, in turn, causes the gas to ignite.

Lake Katrine Grange Meeting, Flower Show

Lake Katrine, June 9—On Monday evening, June 5, the regular meeting of Lake Katrine Grange was held at the hall. There were 22 members and 41 sisters present. All officers reported present.

The meeting was opened in due form with Worthy Master William T. Hookey, Jr., in the chair. Among the suggestions for the good of the order was to have a clean up day at the hall. The evening of Wednesday, June 7, was set for this occasion.

Sister Dederick asked to be released from the chairmanship of the Dramatic committee and Sister and Brother K. Parish with Sister and Brother Hendricks were appointed to take over the chairmanship and form this committee.

As chairman of the May committee, Sister Dederick turned into the treasury $55.35 for their month.

Brother R. Heppner volunteered to put screening on the frames for the windows. Brother Parish will purchase the screening. Brother Heppner stated that this would be his part of the clean up day work.

At the Pomona meeting to be held in Clintondale in September, Sister Kenneh Parish was nominated as delegate.

Literary program was in charge of Flora, Sister Ronson. Sister Ronson dedicated this program to Memorial Day and Flora. The first number on the program was a reading by Flora, "The Origin of Memorial Day." After the reading Flora, with the assistance of Ceres and Pomona, the worthy master and the chaplain placed on the altar two white peonies in memory of those who have passed on within the past year.

After this ceremony the song, "There Is No Night There" was sung by the quartet. This completed the Memorial part of the program. As part of the Flora program, the stage was beautifully decorated with flowers to represent a garden path leading to an inviting bench under a welcoming shade tree. On the other side of the garden an inviting garden chair beckoned the weary. The path was bordered with iris of the most beautiful shades. Among some of the many flowers which bloomed so profusely in this garden were: Pink and white peonies, choice iris, Oriental poppy, sweet william, long spurred, aquigelia, painted daisy, bleeding heart, blue flax, Canterbury bells, digitalis, choice pansies, pinks, cornflowers, roses, California poppy, babybreath and Shirley poppy, together with ferns of different descriptions.

Mr. Rockwell, author of books on horticulture and floriculture, gave a very interesting talk on the subject of roses and their propagation.

A poem was read at this time by Sister Forman, "Dilemma in a Garden." A duet, "Larboard Watch," by Brothers Hookey and Gurney. A poem by Brother Sanford, "Pansies are for thoughts, lilacs are for memories." A song by the Grange, "Church in the Wildwood."

At this time the flower contest was held with Sisters Kukuk and Kieffer together with Mr. Rockwell as the judges. The judgment was on the arrangements of flowers in vases and the arrangement of flowers in baskets. First prize for the arrangement in the vase went to Sister Ronson, for her beautiful bouquet of Shirley poppies. Second prize in this group went to Sister J. Young for her lovely arrangement of Japanese roses. First prize for arrangement in the basket went to Sister J. Young for her arrangement of flowers of different kinds. Second prize in this group went to Sister T. Munson for her basket arrangement of sweet william combined with batchelor buttons. At this time the announcement was made that the service and hospitality committee together with the Garden Club would hold a sale of flowers and bulbs after the meeting, which proved to be a great success.

After the meeting delicious refreshments consisting of assorted sandwiches, cake and coffee were enjoyed by all.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

It is our modest guess that nobody, young or old, ever had lips of the cherry color the present-day lipsticks paint them.

Edythe—Do you love me, Richard, dear?

Richard—Huh! Do you suppose I'd be laughing my head off every night at your father's stale jokes if I didn't love you?

It may be the darkest just before the dawn, but we sometimes have a hard time deciding when it's the darkest.

Jack—How do I stand in your affection, Elizabeth?

Elizabeth—I'd have to refer to my card index, but I think you are pretty near the top.

Roosevelt may be only 51, but it is expected he will age a great deal within the next four years—or next year, for that matter.

Barber—How do you like this new soap, sir?

Customer—It tastes fine. You must have lunch with me.

Lima Beane thinks the most remarkable thing about radio is that it picks up jokes that have been in the air half a century.

The two young married women were talking seriously over the affairs of married life.

First Newlywed—I'm very much concerned lately about the way my husband is treating me. Gradually he has been getting lax in his attentions, stays down town for dinner quite frequently, leaving me home alone, and sometimes comes home late at night with very slim excuses. I don't like it at all.

Second Newlywed—I went through that same experience, but I soon broke it up.

First Newlywed—How?

Second Newlywed—Well, I waited until he came in very late one night, and as he came quietly up the stairs, I called out: "Is that you, Charlie?" And that broke him of staying out nights.

First Newlymed—My goodness How did that break it up?

Second Newlywed—My husband's name is John.

The present mode of bidding in the old homestead for fifteen cents at the foreclosure sales is one that was never thought of in the old melodramas.

Mrs. Snapper—Remember, we were married by a justice of the peace.

Mr. Snapper—Bah! And I've had neither justice nor peace.

Early Summer Shorts. . . . Kisses are the dessert of love making, and, just like a man, he always wants to eat his dessert first. . . . The bride's mother may cry at the wedding, but if you see a man wearing a look of supreme content, that's the broken-hearted father. . . . Now that jig-saw puzzles are all the rage, girls may try putting the pieces of a boy's heart together after he's all broken up over her. . . .

Helen—What do you do when a man tries to kiss you?

Clarice—Oh, that's something you'll have to find out for yourself.

Man believed invention of the two-pants suit progress until he discovered daylight through both seats on the same morning.

Man—Congratulate us! I have become a grandfather and my wife a grandmother!

Neighbor—Really! Twins?

A lot of our girlies would look a lot less like a pain-in-the-neck if they could get vanishing paint as well as vanishing cream.

Old Lady (to friend of races)—I've backed a horse and it is sure to win, because it starts at 20 to 1 and the race isn't till 2 o'clock.

Colored Parson (glancing at the diminutive, watery-eyed, bowlegged bridegroom, who stood beside two hundred and ten pounds of feminine assurance)—Does yo' take this woman for your lawfully wedded wife?

Bridegroom (gloomily)—Ah takes nothin'. Ah's bein' tooked.

More fights are started by kidders and razzers, than by actual quarrels or hatred.

Now that Russian statesmen are getting civil, maybe they can be recognized. The worst thing about Soviet diplomacy has been its manners.

Girl Is U. S. 'Secret Keeper' As Delegation's Archivist At London Economic Meet

By SIGRID ARNE.

Washington (AP)—Celeste Jedel—brown-eyed, and only 22—must be added to the list of women in foreign fields under the program of the Roosevelt administration.

Miss Jedel has gone to London with the American delegation to the world economic conference, bearing the official title of "archivist".

She was appointed to the delegation from her regular post in the office of Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state.

"Secret Keeper Extraordinary".

Her duties in London make her "secret keeper extraordinary" in spite of the moss-covered tradition about women and secrets. She is in charge of the official papers—receiving, relaying and filing official messages between Washington and the conferees. Miss Jedel gathered in her sheep-skin from Barnard college just two years ago.

Armaments, war debts and trade treaties are filling the air around her now. But Miss Jedel's associates here simply look amused when suggestions are made that they constitute a rather heavy diet for a young lady.

Diplomatic Urge Came Early.

When she attended high school in New York, where she was born, she sat down and wrote the state department for advice on how to get into the diplomatic service.

She plowed doggedly through geography, history and economics. She was still floundering with her ambition when she signed for courses in the classes of Prof. Raymond Moley, then at Columbia University, now assistant secretary of state. He pointed out that she must study government.

She must have done it with vengeance. Now she has a Phi Beta Kappa pin, and she spent a summer at the Geneva school of international studies on a Barnard fellowship.

Even before Miss Jedel had her diploma she stepped into the active field. She was made one of the research assistants that aided Moley when he took part in the Seabury investigation in New York. She was part of the staff that went with him when he was named research director of the New York state commission on the administration of justice.

Then came the move to the state department. Miss Jedel was named to the staff. Three months passed and she sailed for London.

Even before Celeste Jedel was graduated from college she wanted to enter the diplomatic service. Now, at 22, she's archivist for the American delegation to the London economic conference.

SERVICES SUNDAY IN THREE RURAL CHURCHES

Sunday services in the Ashokan, Glenford and West Hurley M. E. Churches, the Rev. Clarence C. Winchell, pastor, will be held as follows:

West Hurley Church — 10:30, morning worship; sermon, "The Source of Life." 10:30 a. m., junior church. 11:30 a. m., Sunday school.

Glenford Church—1:30 p. m., Sunday school. 2:30 p. m., worship. Sermon, "The Source of Life."

Ashokan Church—10:30 a. m., Sunday school. 7 p. m., church membership class. 8, evening worship. Sermon, "The Source of Life."

Sunday, June 18, Children's Day program: 10:30 a. m., at West Hurley Church; 8 p. m., at Ashokan Church.

In its first six weeks the Knoxville, Tenn., barter exchange gave work to 100 jobless on 130 jobs and sold or swapped $500 worth of goods.

British Educators Organize to Back Academic Liberty

London (AP)—Spurred into being by the dismissal of professors and teachers in Germany, an "Academic Assistance Council" has been formed here.

Backed by leading men and women in Britain's educational life, it is asking funds to assist those who "on grounds of religion, political opinion or race are unable to carry on their work in their own countries."

"We ask for means," the council states in its first appeal, "to prevent the waste of exceptional abilities exceptionally trained."

Calls Issue World-Wide.

While action is being taken because of the German situation, the council says that the issue is not a Jewish one alone, nor is the problem confined to Germany.

"We should like to regard any funds entrusted to us as available for university teachers and investigators of whatever country who, on grounds of religion, political opinion or race, are unable to carry on their work in their own countries," the appeal states.

Forty-one persons signed the first appeal, many of them holders of honorary degrees from universities in the United States and some who have lectured in America.

Political Motives Barred.

Among the signers were five winners of Nobel prizes. They included Sir W. H. Bragg, co-sharer with his son of the 1915 award for physics; Sir F. Gowland Hopkins, who was given the 1929 prize for medicine; Lord Rutherford, recipient of the 1908 award for chemistry; Sir C. S. Sherrington, co-sharer of the 1932 prize for medicine, and Sir J. J. Thompson, winner of the 1906 prize for physics.

"Our action implies no unfriendly feelings to the people of any country," the appeal states. "It implies no judgment on forms of government or on any political issue between countries."

CONFIRMATION SERVICE IN ROSENDALE CHURCH.

On Wednesday evening, June 7, a large congregation assembled in All Saints' Church, Rosendale, where the Right Rev. Charles K. Gilbert, D. D., Suffragen Bishop of New York, administered the rite of confirmation to a class of 22 persons prepared and presented by the rector of the parish, the Rev. W. J. Gratton. A short evensong conducted by the rector, preceded the service of confirmation, after which the bishop delivered a soul stirring and instructive address to all present. Two appropriate selections were sung by Prof. R. H. Hawksley during the service, accompanied by Mrs. Gratton at the organ. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with peonies, iris and other flowers. This is the largest class presented in the history of the parish.

Joe Cook Only Graduate

Shokan, June 8—The Brown Station school picnic will be held on Friday, February 16. Joe Cook is the only pupil to graduate from the school this term; Gertrude Osterhoudt will finish her elementary studies in January. It is understood that Mrs. Archie Ronk, the present efficient and well liked teacher, will return to Brown Station next September.

Peasants Chased from Riches

Angora (AP).—Turkish peasants plowing near Balikesser uncovered ancient tombs containing gold utensils and jewels. The governor of the district drove the peasants away and sent a hurry call to Angora for archaeologists.

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—In the case of Elissa Landi the skies looked brightest just before the storm.

Miss Landi, whose career in films has been a series of great expectations, seldom realized until recently, has taken French leave of her studio and gone to points east, New York among them, to be away a month or more.

The studio, which wanted her for retakes on her latest picture, managed without her.

Just before the breach the star was being acclaimed as "a new Landi," entirely different from the personality she showed in her earlier performances. This was after she appeared as an Amazon leader in "The Warrior's Husband," and while she was co-starring with Warner Baxter in "I Loved You Wednesday."

Confession

During the latter production she was quoted in such cheerful statements as: "I've been all wrong and Hollywood's been all wrong about me these many months. I'm not the cold, distant girl who has placed herself upon a pedestal of ice that people in the film colony have imagined. On the other hand, I've discovered that Hollywood is not cheap and tawdry as I imagined it would be when I first came here, an impression that I never took the trouble before to prove to myself was false."

The next we hear Elissa is gone—another rebel-against-a-role in a long list which has included Janet Gaynor, George Raft, Aline MacMahon, Miriam Hopkins, Marlene Dietrich and Carole Lombard. Miss Landi's dissatisfaction is attributed to an assignment for a new picture.

Then A Truce

All of these others, incidentally, managed to patch their differences with their respective studios, and in only two cases did the companies bring legal action against the recalcitrant star.

Paramount's suit against Marlene Dietrich and Josef von Sternberg was forgotten when the two returned to work, and Warren Bros. recently dropped their court plea against Aline MacMahon, who refused to play in a scene she considered objectionable. Miss MacMahon and the studio are at peace again.

A Crow's Wisdom

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Now you may not know much about Crows," began Christopher Columbus Crow, "and I beg of you not to think I am conceited when I tell you something. It is not of myself that I am speaking, but of the whole Crow family. The Crow is as wise a bird as ever you'll find."

"What about the Owl?" asked Willy Nilly. "I thought no bird was so wise as he."

"Caw, caw, caw, we've often spoken about that."

"About the Owl's wisdom?" Willy Nilly asked.

"No, not about his wisdom, or what you're calling his wisdom. We have wondered whether it would be better to keep quiet or to let them know what we're saying when we're cawing.

"If you've ever noticed we give people very little idea what we mean when we're making our various sounds. Many birds let people into their secrets and their different chirps and cries and what they mean. Not so the Crow.

"But the Owl, on the other hand as you would say, but on the other wing as I would say, looks as though he knew a lot and hardly says a word so people think he's very intelligent.

"For years and years people have been told that the Owl was a wise bird and they have gone on believing it just because they've been told it so often. But have they bothered to find out which bird is wiser? Had they done this they would have known it was the Crow.

"Well, now that you're feeling yourself again, I must make myself at home around these parts. Oh, I'm about to discover something!"

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "Billion Dollar Scandal." Teapot Dome is brought into the limelight after years of retirement, in this thriller of the scandal and excitement and corruption that was a part of the famous case. This time, Robert Armstrong plays the part of an ex-convict who learns all about the dirty business afoot, and who can't be bought off by the grafters. This is a very intense play, filled with tension and melodramatic moments. The romance is provided by Constance Cummings and Olga Baclanova.

Orpheum: "Devil and the Deep" and "Gun Law." Jealousy is the key note of the first production, a story of a submarine commander who believes his wife to be unfaithful, and who forces her to be because of his constant suspicion. Tallulah Bankhead, Charles Laughton and Gary Cooper are in the cast. There are some exceptional under water scenes in this talkie. "Gun Law" gives Jack Hoxie another average western melodrama in which to perform with his guns and his horse.

Broadway: "Lucky Devils." The lives of the movie "stunt men" are disclosed in this fastly paced story of the men who risk their lives daily to bring the picture public new camera thrills. There isn't a dull moment in the whole show, with enough thrills and punch to please any audience. A fine cast that includes Bill Boyd, Dorothy Wilson, William Gargan, Creighton Chaney and Roscoe Ates all work hard for the picture's success.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: "Looking Forward." Lionel Barrymore's latest starring vehicle is a gem of artistic beauty in quality of the acting displayed and the flawless realism of the story as it unfolds on the screen. It's another visual picture of the depression as felt in England, and it depicts the struggles of a British concern to weather the storm. Lionel Barrymore is perfectly cast as a clerk in the concern, and he is given ample support by Lewis Stone in the role of the owner. Others in an exceptionally gifted cast include Billie Clive, Benita Hume Whitworth, Allen and Phillips Holmes. Not exciting entertainment, but very much a real picture.

Orpheum: Same.

Broadway: "Call Her Savage." Clara Bow bears back to the screen after a long absence, and it turns out that this new show gives her the opportunity of giving the best performance of her long movie career. It's the story of a girl, bothered about by life and men until her only desire is to get even with all those who have hurt her in the past. Such a show gives Miss Bow a chance to make the most of her talents, and she doesn't miss a chance. From the very first this talkie moves along at a brisk and lavish pace, with Clara Bow the dominating figure at every camera shot. A cast that includes Monroe Owsley, Thelma Todd, and Anthony Jewitt lends capable support.

HIGHLAND

Highland, June 8—The birthday supper in the M. E. Church last Thursday evening was a howling success, both from social, financial and artistic standpoints. Tables representing every month in the year were beautiful. Decorations on all sides were superb and the ladies who presided over them felt elated. The center pieces on all tables were very artistic and won a great deal of praise. The first prize was awarded Mrs. Herbert Schoefield, second went to Mrs. Parker Decker. Each received a linen card table cover with napkins to match, one blue and white and the other yellow and white. These were given by the president, Mrs. Suzanne Decker, who has been at the head of the club for 35 years. The menu was all that could be desired in the culinary line and everyone appreciated the good things. Guests were present from Newburgh and Kingston, over 100 being in attendance. A thoroughly delightful evening was enjoyed, every moment being one of pleasure. The affair will go down in clubdom history as one long to be remembered. The various committees deserve great praise. For the ladies to bring such an affair to a successful termination is no easy matter and all did grand work.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Johnston and family of Brewster were week-end and holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Erichsen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold DuBois and family spent the week-end in Catskill with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stewart and son of Highland Falls were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cummings on Main street.

Charles DuBois and son, Donald, spent the week-end at the DuBois camp, Watson Hollow.

Mrs. Jennie Faas of Highland Falls was Sunday guest of Captain and Mrs. R. H. Decker and Miss Bertha Dimsey.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mondy are now in Canada, where they will spend a month or more.

Mr. and Mrs. Wyant of Newburgh attended the popular birthday supper of the Auxiliary Club in the M. E. Church last Thursday evening.

Music Study Club, which was to have given a recital this month, has given up the affair through unavoidable circumstances.

John Blakely has secured a position in Kingston.

Mrs. Rachel Rowley and George Rowley were in Malden Sunday, visiting relatives.

Mrs. Edith Upright had as her guests Memorial Day her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Upright, of Red Bank, N. J.

Mrs. Lavina Coutant was hostess to friends from out of town for the week-end.

Gordon Wilcox was a business caller in Albany Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Lounsberry and daughter of Peekskill were week-end guests of Mrs. Katherine Hackstein-er at her home on Vineyard avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Maynard had as their week-end and holiday guests Mr. and Mrs. Winchester Howell of Bogota, N. J.

Children's Day will be observed in the M. E. Church Sunday, June 11.

Mrs. Howard Wilcox was hostess to the W. C. T. U. Thursday afternoon at her home "Woodside Place." Mrs. H. Killinder, chairman; Mrs. Swift, president.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter and friends from Kingston attended the birthday supper of the Auxiliary Club last Thursday evening. Mrs. Feeter is a member of the club and Mr. Feeter is one of the officials of the church board.

George Gedney of Mt. Vernon and Charles Gedney of Yonkers were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gedney at their home on Milton avenue.

Mrs. Harvey Traver was hostess to the Monday Afternoon Bridge Club at her home, Milton avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dimsey entertained guests over the holiday from Poughkeepsie and Pine Bush at their home on North Road.

Mrs. Mabel Hasbrouck is in Albany spending a short time with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis. Miss B. Hasbrouck, who is a law student in Syracuse University, will soon return to this place and spend her summer vacation at her mother's home, Vineyard avenue.

Howard E. Wilcox was in New York city Tuesday on business.

Dr. and Mrs. Salvatore and sons were at their camp at Greenwood Lake for the week-end and holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Carpenter had as their holiday guests Mr. and Mrs. Martin Upright of Maybrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dusinberre were Sunday guests of friends in Gardiner.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Coutant entertained several guests from Astoria, Long Island, over the holiday and week following at their camp in Lake Katrine.

Mrs. Mabel Goldt has returned from Ithaca, N. Y., where she acted as delegate to the Rebekah state assembly.

Highland Boy Scouts hiked to Ashokan reservoir Friday afternoon.

Presbyterian Aid held a game party at the "Elms" for the benefit of the church. There were 15 tables of players and refreshments were served.

Mrs. Millie Dimsey and Mrs. Irving Mears were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Antone Schaffer on Salt Point Road, Dutchess county.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Martin of Milton road have as their guests for a few days Mrs. Calantha Traver and Mrs. Agnes Grobe of Catskill.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Richter of Brooklyn were guests at the "Elms" recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin and daughters were Sunday guests of relatives in Coxsackie.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Jordon, Herman Jordan and Miss Emma Paltridge were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jordon at their home in Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Byron Bennett, Elmer Bennett and Miss Daisey Bennett spent the day at Ashokan Dam on Memorial Day and enjoyed a family picnic.

Memorial Day parade was fine in spite of the rain. H. Slater in uniform, astride his beautiful white horse, was at the head of the line of march. The Fife and Drum Corps in blue and gold furnished music. The Vineyard Rebekah Lodge car was very handsome. The U. D. Society, Odd Fellows, Boy and Girl Scouts and ladies of D. of A. carried the immense flag and marched, showing their loyalty to the order. Presbyterian and Methodist ministers held services. Many events could not take place on account of rain.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Donovan and son, Junior, motored to Kingston Saturday evening.

Minnie Macker spent the week in Marlborough with relatives.

Miss Eliza Raymond had week-end guests from Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Campbell spent the week-end in Andes with Mr. Campbell's brother.

Mrs. J. J. Ennist entertained a Bridge Club at her home Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Filkins entertained Sunday guests from Marlborough.

M. E. Church Sunday School Board will hold a strawberry and ice cream festival on the church lawn, June 10. Serving will begin at 5 p. m.

Ladies' Aid Society of Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. Alfred Lane Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Blakely and son have returned home after spending a number of days at camp in Sundown.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Langdon have spent two weeks on Grand street at the home of Mrs. Mary Mallock. They returned to their home in New Rochelle the first of week.

Official Board of M. E. Church held its regular meeting Monday evening and transacted many business affairs.

Talks to parents

Nursery Ball Play

By ALICE JUDSON PEALE

The adult usually is disappointed when, trying to play a simple ball game with the toddler, the little one fails to cooperate. This does not mean that balls are unsuitable for young children, but that the game the adult is trying to play is unsuitable for the young child.

Balls are among the very best play materials for children from the time they are old enough to crawl until they are adult. The crawling baby enjoys merely clutching a small ball in his hand, dropping it, seeing it roll away, and then recapturing it. This play gives him exercise, trains his senses and muscles in purposeful coordination and is anything but the failure that the not understanding adult often thinks it.

The child old enough to walk adds to this sort of play the pleasure of merely carrying his ball around in a pail or a wagon, putting it in one place, only to pick it up and carry it to another.

At about two or two and a half he will usually make an effort to catch a ball bounced carefully in his direction. He may be willing too to sit opposite an adult on the floor and catch a ball rolled to him between his outspread legs.

These are excellent games since they demand very little skill and give the child an enormous feeling of success. But the child tires of them quickly and one must not expect him to concentrate on it long.

The child invents endless games with balls of all sizes. A three-year-old enjoyed pushing a huge light ball about with his kiddy car. Another enjoyed rolling a ball down a sloping plank, still another bouncing it against a wall.

The variations are endless and all valuable as exercise and control training.

DUCE HONORS FARM WORK BY NEW ORDER OF MERIT.

Rome (AP).—Premier Mussolini has recognized the dignity of farm labor by the creation of the Order of Royal Merit.

Its decoration is a star with degrees signified by gold, silver and bronze pendants. The badges are restricted to real "dirt farmers."

The order parallels the Order of Labor Merit, previously created to show national appreciation for exceptional industrial workers.

"That new gas range was worth getting"

GAS for Cooking averages only 2½c per meal in this city

"Yes, it does make a difference! There's no guesswork about it. And I got this dinner in about half the time it usually takes.

"Incidentally, Mrs. Smith, who has had her range several months, has kept a record of the cost for gas, and finds that it amounts to only 2½c per meal for the four of them. It was certainly a good buy!"

Put more SUNSHINE days on your calendar

How many days in the month do you feel your best? You can add to those sunshine days by simply obeying nature's laws.

The first of these laws is regular elimination. Avoid common constipation by eating a delicious cereal.

Two slices Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to cleanse the intestines, and vitamin B to help aid regularity. ALL-BRAN also contains twice the iron of an equal weight of beef liver.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much more pleasant than pills and drugs—to eat bulk-forming.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Directions on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

7888

A Popular Style

7888. The guimpe of handkerchief linen or organdy and the dress of pique or printed linen, will make this a cool and comfortable summer frock. Sheer cottons are also suggested and crepe in cotton or silk may be combined with batiste or linen. Sheer crepe in pale blue or other pastel shades with a white guimpe would be nice for this style. The guimpe has short "pushup" sleeves and a smart neck line. The jumper is shaped to effect a wide shoulder line and to reveal the guimpe at the neck and sides. The skirt has center panels and straight side sections.

Designed in 5 sizes: 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 will require 2¾ yards of 35 inch material for the dress and 1 1-8 yard for the guimpe if made as in the large view. If made of one material, the dress and guimpe will require 2⅝ yards. To finish the jumper and guimpe with binding will require 3⅜ yards 1½ inch wide.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

NELSON'S GREAT-NIECE PLAYS IN BRITISH FILM

London (AP).—Lord Nelson's great-niece, said to be the oldest actress in England, is playing in a film here.

Aged 90, this descendant of Britain's sea hero is Horatia Nelson, who has played 350 parts and has reared eight children.

"I'd have worn better if I hadn't had to keep them through two wars on nothing," she said.

"I remember only one time when the work got me a bit dizzy. That was when I had to smoke a pipeful of strong tobacco for two hours."

She sets an example in energy that some of the younger generation might envy. "I often get up at four in the morning," she said, "and walk two miles in the station so as to be at the set at Ealing ready to be made up by 7:15."

Household Use of Sugar

Of the 3,900,000 long tons of sugar used about 2,650,000 tons are devoted to household use.

A Black Summer for a Change

New York—Fashionable women are as unwilling as the rest of us to accept the fact that another year has gone by and that summer is here. Each year, at the approach of warm weather, they make a swift flight from brilliant colors to black. They do not stay there however but soon emerge from the cocoon of the winter to an acceptance of white summer, but to be contrary we are going to have a black summer. Less of white for us, of course, but much more black than is worn in the frivolous season.

It all started with black lace and black organdie. Dotted swiss usually goes in line and made such tremendous strides that it has almost chased it to linger for street wear. It lots of ways it is a better summer companion, and is easily crushed, sweeter too.

No really smart girl will find herself without a black costume one of the transparent sort this summer and it is quite likely that she will decide to wear a black evening suit, as always, all now and then as a way of change.

As to hats it looks as though the small white ones and the large or medium black ones would run away with the season. It's a good idea, naturally, to have hats that go with everything, and that's exactly what all black or all white ones do.

A black linen or dotted swiss costume topped by an all white hat is a mass favorite.

Winter hats are here stiffened fabrics, or in straw and they do look good again. Most small hats have flaring veils, usually of crin. For keeping one's ringlets in place they are most expedient. No more cramming one's hat down over one's coiffure, no indeed, it must show this season.

IN A DARK MOOD

Gangplank Gossip

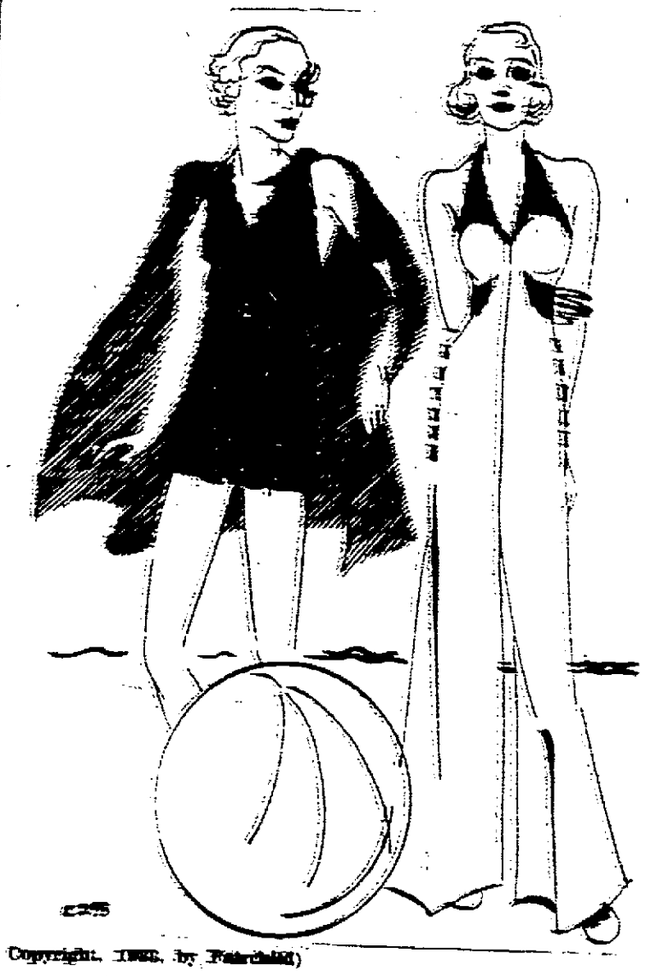
Straightline coats with high shoulders and collars having softening revers or jabot details, sometimes edged with fur, are emphasized by those recently returned from Paris. Swagger length coats are important in both summer and fall considerations. Rough surface woolens are favored for formal types of daytime coats, and mat tweeds are prominent for sportswear.

Another black dotted Swiss frock deserves mention for its pleated edges, shallow and perky, forming a border at the hemline, peplum, sleeves and neckline.

The button-down-the-front detail in both cases is noteworthy.

The Long and the Short of Beach Costumes



(Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild)

Jersey in blues and white in plaid pattern makes the charming and practical bathing ensemble at the left. The capelet is tucked into a yoke with the necklace and ties smartly over the shoulders.

At the right white jersey makes a dramatic beach pajama with red and black inserts and white buttons outlining the hips.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

The newest looking Paton shapes are like caps with visors, but instead of the cap being loose and familiar of crown are squared into little pillbox toques with the visor at front. They are made in the fabric of the costume they accompany.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

Paris, June 9 (AP).—Lovers give the largest tips—so says Pierre Erligman, veteran taxi chauffeur who has driven 356,000 miles in his 32-year career.

They give largesse ranging from 20 to 40 per cent of their bills, instead of the traditional 10, he estimates.

Erligman drove one of the famous "coffee grinders" that carried French troops from Paris to the battle of the Marne in 1914.

Back Comes McGuffey.

Oklahoma City—McGuffey's readers, popular 35 years ago, are trying for a comeback in Oklahoma. A complete series of the readers is among nearly 2,000 books submitted for adoption to the Oklahoma textbook commission.

Voodooism?

Columbia, S. C.—After the body of an 11-year-old negro who had drowned had been sought by various means for more than 24 hours, an aged negro appeared with a bundle of corn fodder:

"Dis heah will show you whah he is," he said tossing the bundle into the Congaree river.

One hundred searchers followed the bundle five miles to a boat landing, where the body was recovered.

Wedding Day.

Philadelphia—It was just another day to Mr. and Mrs. Felix Smith, fighting their marital battles in court, until Judge Lewis asked them how long they'd been married.

"We were married—, why we were married eight years ago today," gasped Mrs. Smith. "This is our wedding anniversary."

The realization failed to bring reconciliation, however.

No Man's Land.

Pennsboro, W. Va.—Of seven municipal officials chosen in this man's town, six of them were women—a mayor, recorder, and four councilwomen, all unmarried excepting the mayor.

The lone man to be elected to office is Okey Bush, council member.

There's Money in Hay.

Blythe, Calif.—Some of the "long green" in Win White's recently baled hay is not alfalfa, he fears.

Somewhere in one of the bales cut from his 80 acres, he feels certain is currency totaling $40. For while supervising the cutting and baling of his alfalfa he lost his wallet.

Now he is in a quandary. Should he open all the bales—or should he let some nonchalant cow masticate a $40 breakfast.

Just Keep Cool

Chicago—The best way to keep cool in hot weather is to keep a cool head.

This is the advice of Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the board of health.

"The way," he said, "to be cool all over is to keep a cool head. Don't get riled. Keeping the temper under control will do more for the temperature than all the water in Lake Michigan or all the beer in Munich.

Just a Little Heat.

Oshkosk, Wis.—It was 94 in the shade.

The bridge tender opened a span to permit a boat to pass.

It wouldn't close until firemen sprayed cold water on it to contract the metal beams.

FAILED TO GET NEW PERMITS FOR PISTOLS.

It is reported that more than 75 persons who took out permits in 1932 allowing them to carry pistols have not yet called at the pistol bureau in the court house and renewed their permits for this year.

YOUNG AFRICANS SALUTE IN MUSSOLINI FASHION

Benghazi, Cyrenaica, (AP).—Dusky youngsters of this Italian colony are beginning to substitute Mussolini's Roman salute for the legendary salaam of their fathers.

Italians transplanted here under the duce's scheme for colonial development formed two organizations, the Fascists of Beda and the Fascists of El Abragh.

In the van of their parades there always appear beturbaned native boys, imitating every move of the white men.

Received Free Shoes.

Mrs. Fred Sahloff of 222 North Manor avenue called at the James L. Rowe shoe store Thursday and received free a pair of $6 shoes. Mrs. Sahloff was fortunate enough to have a key that unlocked one of the five locks on display in the store. A large number of these keys were distributed free and among them were five that fitted the five locks. A person holding one of these five keys secures free a pair of shoes by calling at the store before June 30 and opening the lock to which the key belongs.

Upper Room Mission.

The regular midweek prayer and praise service will be held at the Upper Room Mission, 562 Broadway, tonight at 7:45. The Rev. G. E. Kerr will preach. All welcome.

Mt. LeConte, one of the loftiest peaks in the Great Smoky Mountions national park, soon can be reached by horseback over a trail now being built.

WEST SHOKAN

A family group calling on Mrs. Minnie Bishop and Mrs. Chase Davis Tuesday afternoon in West Shokan were Mrs. Leonard Heaton and Mrs. Lemuel Everett, son, James, with his wife and children, James, Jr., and sister, Hattie, also her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Smith, of Forest where they have been attending missionary school for the past three years. Mrs. Howard before her marriage was Miss Josephine Winne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Winne, and spent her girlhood days in the old village of West Shokan. Mrs. Howard is the mother of [illegible] children.

The ladies' aid society of the Community church met at the home of Mrs. Lemuel Heaton on Thursday afternoon. Plans are already under way for the annual supper and sale to be held in August.

Deputy Sheriff ex-Sergeant Arthur Darling of South Dave was a Kingston caller on business with the city on Thursday.

Francis Hall Auto Sets Record

Le Mans, France (AP)—An automobile on sale from European roads today upset records reaching 137 miles an hour to train last week. The previous mark was 136 miles an hour between Berlin and Hannover.

Howe About:

Martin Johnson
Versus Among Kings
Railroads

By ED HOWE

ALTHOUGH now in a country town in Kansas, there is a famous and rich man named Martin Johnson. A few days ago, what was a good deal of news, some time ago, most people have forgotten, and good persons and newspapers no longer emphasize the importance of public men in business and industry.

Recently I met Mr. as was mentioned in these letters, and more notice was soon also to understand that more adventures were no longer available. Happening on a good idea, Mrs. decided to go there to take moving pictures of big game animals capture them alive for sale to parks and menageries, and now lives in a palace in Nairobi, in South Africa. He has had wonderful adventures, met many famous people, and appeared before great audiences in every part of the world.

Anyone who denounces Martin Johnson because he is famous and a gentleman, or says he acquired his fortune by means not available to everybody is a fool. Johnson's average in decency has been a little above the average of those who denounce him because of his prosperity.

And I like his wife Osa, who is also from Kansas. I do not know either of them; have seen them only in their wonderful public performances and paid for the privilege.

* * *

Every one is writing now; even kings and business men are seeking such defense as print affords. There is lately available a book by the recently deposed king of Spain, although the actual work was done by a ghost writer. The title is "By-Ways of Royalty," and the ghost writer, the Grand Duke Alexander of Russia, is thoroughly familiar with his subject. It is the first intimate story of royalty I have ever read, and I wonder the book does not attract more attention. The intimate life of a king is as curious and strange to me as the intimate life of a Russian peasant, with his tea drinking, fleas, sheepskin clothing, and running away from wolves and famines. The author, although a grand duke, writes surprisingly well; he believes democracy a false system, but is fair in dealing with it.

Having been a humble subject all my life, and gazed on rulers only from afar, I found many surprising statements in the book, and quote one for your amusement:

"No major country has ever gone bankrupt because of its king's mistresses, but the worst fate that ever befell a monarch befell the czar of Russia because of being ruled by a foolish wife."

The czar and Grand Duke Alexander were cousins; the grand duke knew the Russian royal family intimately and for many years. The author concludes kings as husbands average about as do draymen, dentists, clerks, merchants, lawyers, doctors, and other town men. He thinks it possible, however, that the average among farmers, as to outside love affairs, may be a little higher than it is among kings, owing to farmers being isolated on lonely creeks and prairies.

* * *

The moving picture people have about all the money now, but the radicals are not suggesting that they divide with the poor; that demand is made on manufacturers and other useful persons who haven't any.

One "movie" man in Hollywood lately authorized his press agent to broadcast the statement that his income from salary alone was half a million a year.

The class one railroads (meaning a group comprising all the best ones) last year lost more than a hundred and fifty million dollars, as against a profit of sixteen million in 1931. Throughout the year of this terrific deficit, the class one railroads gave employment to hundreds of thousands of men at the highest average wages paid in the world; yet there is not a community in the country, or a jury, that does not join the government and courts in efforts to further impoverish the railroads.

But how the "movies," of no use to anyone, prosper!

It is another exhibition of the American spirit, unintelligent and dishonest, that must be changed before the country can again get on its feet.

* * *

Nothing is ever settled. When I was a boy I heard quarreling which greatly disturbed those taking part. I have heard the same quarreling about the same subjects within an hour; now that I am in my eighteenth year. If, after death, I am restored to consciousness I shall be surprised, but whether I land in the bosom of Abraham or in the clutches of the devil, I think I shall appreciate once knowing positively where I am at.

* * *

Everyone knows you are a weak creature; you will daily admit it yourself after reaching considerable age. I can offer no advice here except that everyone become as strong as possible. Emergencies are always coming up, and a little strength and sense will be found of great value in considering them.

* * *

It has actually been proposed that the government do something to prevent strikes: several congressmen have bills ready as soon as they begin campaigning again.

Local Students Will Be Among 1,200 to Get Degrees From Cornell

Commencement Exercises at Cornell University on June 19 Will See Local Residents Among Those Receiving Honors.

Ithaca, June 9—Among the 1,200 persons receiving degrees from Cornell University at the commencement exercises on June 19, will be several from Kingston and vicinity. This is the greatest number of degrees ever awarded at a single commencement at Ithaca. The provisional list, subject to changes after the examination this week, includes 953 candidates for baccalaureate degrees and 361 candidates for advanced degrees.

Of especial interest in this locality is the graduation of the following:

HOMER D. BROWN

Homer Dickinson Brown, of 199 Smith avenue, is a candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He is a graduate of Kingston High School and is a member of Scorpion fraternity. He was on Freshman Cross Country Squad, College Soccer Team, and College Baseball Team.

Jansen Fowler, of 97 Wall street, Kingston, is a candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Laws. He is a graduate of Kingston High School and is a member of Chi Delta Theta fraternity and Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

JACOB ROSENZWEIG

Jacob Rosenzweig of 335 Second avenue is a candidate for the degree of Electric Engineer. He is a graduate of Kingston High School and was a member of Varsity Cross Country Squad, and R. O. T. C., in which he is a first lieutenant. He held a State Cash and Tuition Scholarship and a McMullen Scholarship.

Marian Catherine Anderson, of Accord, N. Y., upon whom the degree of Bachelor of Arts is being conferred by Cornell University, completed her work in February. Miss Anderson is a graduate of Kerhonkson High School. At Cornell she was active in athletics, having been a member of the Women's Athletic Association. She played on the Women's Freshman Baseball Team, the Women's Basketball Team, and the Women's Soccer Team.

GLEN E. HADERUP (FLEISCHMANNS)

Glenn Solomon Haderup of Fleischmanns is a candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Forestry. He was on College Soccer Team and was a member of Cornell Foresters Club.

ABRAM S. BENENSON (NAPANOCH)

Abram S. Benenson, of Napanoch, N. Y., is a candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, to be conferred June 19 by Cornell University. He was elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic society. He belongs to Phi Sigma Delta fraternity.

Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of the University, will bestow the degrees on the candidates in the ceremony to be held in the Cornell Crescent. The huge football stadium, specially decorated for the exercises and equipped with a public address system, will provide ample room for the thousands of alumni, friends, parents of graduates that annually flock to Ithaca for the combined commencement and reunion ceremonies.

The commencement exercises will serve as the climax of several days of feverish activity on the Cornell campus. Final examinations will end on Tuesday, June 13, and on the next two days the alumni will start pouring into Ithaca from all parts of the country for their annual reunion.

Friday, June 16, will be Alumni Day at Cornell. The oldest class in official attendance will be 1873, back for its 60th reunion. In the evening the senior ball will be held.

On Saturday, June 17, the various alumni organizations hold their annual meetings and dinners and all the alumni will attend a monster rally in Bailey Hall, the University's largest auditorium. Sunday afternoon the graduating class will hear a baccalaureate sermon pronounced by the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, D. D., of the University of Chicago.

Sunday night will see the Class Day ceremonies, when the officers of the graduating class will turn their duties over to the officers of the junior class.

RADIO ARTISTS GIVE PLEASING ENTERTAINMENT

New Paltz, June 9—Monday night, June 5, in the Methodist Church, Arthur Billings Hunt, baritone, lecturer and entertainer, and Lowell Patton, organist, pianist and composer, both radio artists, gave an entertainment. The following program was enjoyed by an appreciative audience: The concert began with a miniature broadcast of a hymn sing, the musical numbers included "In the Garden, "The Old Rugged Cross," and "The Ninety and Nine." Mr. Hunt was soloist, Mr. Patton at the console. The second part of the program consisted of piano solos played by Mr. Patton. The numbers included "The Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman," "The Clown," "The Stars and Stripes Forever," and "The Rosary." The third part was a trip around the world in New York city. Mr. Hunt sang folk songs and explained characteristics of the Syrians, Czechs, Irish, Negroes, Italians and Germans. Part four consisted of three of Lowell Patton's own writing, "The Rover," "The Vagabond," and a "Love Song." The program closed by the audience singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

Indians Entitled to Vote

Since 1924, when the Indian Civilization Act was passed by congress, all native-born Indians of this country have been United States citizens and as such entitled to vote after complying with the voting laws of their states. Before that time, those Indians living in tribal relations on the various reservations, were not citizens. They have just the same privileges with regard to the franchise as white and negro citizens, though, of course, the Indians on the reservations are under restriction with regard to moving off the boundaries of the reservations.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 9 (AP)—Financial markets mulled about in a rather narrow range today and the recent feverish trading pace slowed down appreciably as traders and investors paused to consider the outlook at home and abroad.

Stocks generally displayed easier tendencies, although resistance was shown by some specialties and the declines in most instances were not too severe. Dullness accompanied the easing of prices. Wheat, corn and cotton were steady to firm and some improvement was shown by silver futures. United States Government securities were quiet and relatively firm, but a number of secondary bonds were under pressure.

Many share leaders were off 1 to more than 2 points at one time, although some recovered in intermittent rallies. The tobaccos, which have been usually quiet, exhibited considerable strength. Gains of 1 to around 2 points were registered by American Tobacco B, Liggett & Myers B, Lorillard and Reynolds B. Moderate improvement was shown by some oils, including Standard of New Jersey, Consolidated, Socony Vacuum and Atlantic Refining. Postal Telegraph preferred lost 8 and Western Union dropped around 3 following rejection of the amendment to the railroad bill which would have permitted the companies to merge.

Homestake Mining sagged about 5 and extreme declines of 1 to 2 or more were suffered by DuPont, American Can, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, National Distillers, U. S. Smelting and Dome. The rails did little.

The European situation, with the important economic conference about to start the German financial difficulties tending to cloud the picture, held the financial district's attention to the exclusion of most other ordinary market influences.

While high hopes are being held for favorable international results at the London gathering, close observers of the European scene point out that there are many difficulties to be overcome before the nations can agree on a program to stabilize monetary bases and solve other pressing trade problems.

Some industrialists are troubled by the erratic fluctuations of foreign exchanges resulting in the severe decline of the dollar. They feel that business will be handicapped until importers and exporters can figure in terms of currencies that are fairly stable.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city; branch office, Stuyvesant Hotel.

STOCK TRANSACTIONS PROBED BY COMMITTEE.

Washington, June 9 (AP).—Stock transactions whereby partners in J. P. Morgan & Co., greatly reduced their income tax payments, were reviewed today by the Senate investigating committee.

First Thomas S. Lamont and then William Ewing detailed the means by which losses were recorded against their taxable incomes.

The former, in a statement prepared after the committee had met a challenge of its authority by getting wider power, told how he and his wife had exchanged stocks both directly and indirectly, allowing a $114,807 loss for him in 1930.

Later he repurchased the stocks at about the same prices Mrs. Lamont had paid.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, estimated the deals reduced the young Morgan partner's tax liability that year by $20,000.

"I don't believe it could possibly have been as much as that," Lamont commented, while J. P. Morgan and John W. Davis—Morgan counsel—paid close attention in the uncomfortably warm and sparsely filled hearing room.

Mrs. Jane Van DeMark spent Monday in Kingston.

Butterflies and Moths Fly Across North Sea

Most people interested in nature have wondered at the migratory flights of birds and marveled that such tiny creatures as golden-crested wrens should be able to traverse the North sea. But how many realize that butterflies and moths also fly into the British Isles, not only from Europe, but even from North Africa and Asia Minor?

Painted Lady butterflies, hatched from chrysales in Africa or Asia, flutter across the Mediterranean, across France and into England and Scotland. Probably some of these travelers fly right on—to Iceland. Thus the full journey of these fragile insects may be extended to nearly 4,000 miles.

Cabbage White butterflies also migrate in great swarms, and Clouded Yellows, which come across the channel from the northern coast of France, may often be seen fluttering down on English land in Kent and Sussex.

It may be noted that clouds of butterflies are observed at sea by sailors quite often, though inland large swarms are comparatively seldom seen—probably because the flights break up on reaching land.—Montreal Herald.

Santa Barbara, Calif., received so many inquiries it is considering manufacturing for sale the metal policemen developed to stand in the street and warn autoists of school crossings.

Local Death Record

Peter Teetsel died suddenly in Albany on Wednesday. A hemorrhage caused his death. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Frank Van Valkenburgh, of Schenectady, and a brother, Samuel Teetsel of Quarryville. Funeral services were held this afternoon with interment in Kalahaan cemetery.

Ellenville, June 9.—Ira Oliver Furman died at the home of his son, Floyd, in Napanoch, Monday, June 5, at the age of 88 years. He is survived by two sons, John Furman of Pennsylvania, and Floyd Furman of Napanoch, and a daughter, Mrs. Florence Kaap, of Woodbourne. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon in the Napanoch Reformed Church at 2 o'clock. Interment was in the Yagerville cemetery.

Clintondale, June 9—Funeral services for Claus Christian Hoberg were held from the home of his nephew, Harry Hoberg, of Clintondale on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock in charge of the Rev. Robert Guice, pastor of the Clintondale Methodist Church. Interment was in Lloyd cemetery. Bearers were William Sharp, William Davis, Walter Margraf and Charles Thorn. Mr. Hoberg died at the home of his nephew at the age of 64 years after an illness of about a year. He had lived here for about 50 years.

Ellenville, June 9.—Miss Julia Peters of New York city died Thursday, June 1, at the home of Mrs. Jennie Edsell of Ellenville, where she had resided for a year and a half. Miss Peters was born in New York city on June 22, 1857, and was a daughter of the late Rev. Thomas McClure and Alice Richmond Peters McClure. She is survived by one sister, Miss Sally Peters, of New York city. She was a member of the staff of St. Michael's Church for over 40 years, a church of which her grandfather, father and brother had been rectors for nearly 100 years. Funeral services were held in St. Michael's Church, 99th street and Amsterdam avenue, on Monday, June 5. Interment was in St. Michael's cemetery, at Astoria, L. I.

Mrs. Mary A. Hallahan, nee Dougherty, widow of David P. Hallahan, who conducted a bluestone business in the Wilbur section of Kingston some years ago, died at her home, 1970 Lexington avenue, New York city, Thursday. She was in her 88th year. Her parents were the late Michael and Ann O'Reilly Dougherty, and she was a sister of the late Very Rev. James Dougherty, founder of St. Joseph's Church, this city, the late Mother M. Ambrose, of the Ursuline Order, and the late Elizabeth Dougherty. Surviving is one daughter, Mary Hallahan. Funeral from her late home Saturday at 9 a. m., thence to St. Paul's Church, New York, where a solemn Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment will be in the Hallahan family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, Kingston.

The funeral of Mrs. Teresa Gallo Sottile was held this morning from the late residence, 187 North street, and thence to St. Mary's Church where at 10 o'clock a solemn requiem Mass was offered for the repose of her soul. The Rev. Joseph T. Monroe was celebrant and was assisted by the Rev. W. H. Kennedy as deacon, and the Very Rev. John J. Stanley as subdeacon. The chancel choir sang "Pie Jesu" and at the conclusion of the Mass the choir sang "Thy Will Be Done". The funeral cortege to St. Mary's cemetery where interment was made was one of the largest seen in this city in some time, over 150 cars being in line. The floral offerings were many and beautiful. The services at the grave were in charge of the Rev. W. H. Kennedy.

KERHONKSON HEIGHTS.

Kerhonkson Heights, June 9.—Mrs. Martha C. Greene has returned to her home, after spending three weeks with her sister and family in Stanton, N. J.

Mrs. George Osterhoudt spent Tuesday with his sister in Ellenville.

Alonzo Haver and wife of Ashokan were in this place Wednesday.

Wild strawberries are beginning to ripen, but are not very plentiful on account of the severe drouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Merrihew and Ralph Dewey of Tillson spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Osterhoudt.

Weight of Feathers and Iron

In a vacuum a pound of feathers will weigh exactly as much as a pound of iron if the same standards are used. There is an old saying that a pound of feathers is heavier than a pound of iron. This is in a sense true because of the buoyancy of the air. The following experiment pictures this fact: Counterbalance in air a hollow sphere against a small solid sphere. Place the balance under the receiver of an air pump and exhaust the air. As soon as the air is removed the balance is no longer in equilibrium, the larger sphere than overbalancing a smaller one. Thus bodies which apparently have equal masses in air are found to have different masses in a vacuum. The large hollow sphere corresponds to the pound of feathers; the small solid sphere to the pound of iron.

Yale Lock Safety

A degree of safety is provided by the irregular shape of the key for Yale locks, so that no two keys will fit the same lock. The notches of the average key may be cut in eight depths, so that there are five notches, and the number of different keys possible is eight to the power of five i. e., 32,768. The notches are cut automatically to the required depth and the pins in the plug are made afterward to correspond. Still a further number of key changes is obtained by milling grooves lengthwise on the sides of the keys to correspond with similar grooves in the keyway in the plug. By varying the shape and location of these grooves a great range of key changes is made possible.

About the Folks

Mr. and Mrs. John Stelz of 48 Broadway are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a son, Roger Raymond.

Mrs. Arlene War was removed from 95 West O'Reilly street to the Kingston Hospital in the ambulance on Thursday.

Mrs. Chester Elliot and son of Plutarch spent Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. Gilbert Ackert.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Garibaldi and sons spent Monday in Kingston.

Criminals in Bird World

"We have criminals in our world. So have birds," notes an authority in the Detroit News. "There are some cruel, murderous types—hawks, for example. Some writers describe the falcon's onslaught by saying that it rakes the body of its victim with its claws. In every instance which I have observed—and I've observed many of these crimes—when a duck hawk strikes, its claws are driven in and remain there. Usually victim and aggressor come to earth together."

Dean's Tudor Grill Opens on Broadway

F. L. Dean, formerly of White Plains, has erected a modern lunch and grill on Broadway at Van Buren street, adjacent to Morse Oaks' Texaco gas station. Mr. Dean has had long experience in the restaurant business and will cater to the public either in serving a complete meal or a sandwich. The new grill will be known as Dean's Tudor Grill and is now open for business.

Adjacent to the grill is ample parking space for a large number of cars and the interior of the grill is equipped with all modern conveniences for the rapid service of customers. Five private booths for parties are a feature of the grill in addition to the usual table service. The equipment is modern in all respects and a complete ventilation system will add to the comfort of patrons. Mr. Dean will specialize in regular meals as well as lunches and light refreshments.

The bagpipe was once common as a musical instrument throughout Europe.

SHANDAKEN HOME BUREAU HOLDS PICNIC AND MEETING

Back of the village in the shade of the fragrant pines and on a carpet of pine needles the Shandaken Home Bureau held its annual picnic and program planning meeting Thursday. After a delicious picnic luncheon prepared by the ladies of the community, at which all enjoyed a period of old fashioned visiting, group singing was entered into. Miss Evelyn Nance, Home Bureau manager, was present and led the singing. Mrs. Fred Rosa delightfully entertained with a humorous reading.

Community Needs Met.

When time came for the business of the day the picnic spirit gave way to most thoughtful consideration of the needs of home and community life to be met in the program for the coming year. That more reading is anticipated in Shandaken homes the coming year is shown in the fact that the group voted to order from the State Department of Education, at Albany, an additional 50 volumes of books to add to the Home Bureau library started two or three years ago. A library committee consisting of Mrs. F. M. Cleveland, Miss Elizabeth Frey and Mrs. James Ford volunteered to look after the interests of the library the coming year.

That the social life of the community shall be encouraged, the group voted to hold community sings regularly every month next year, beginning in October. A home talent play is to be given in conjunction with the community sing given in November. Social teas were planned to be given occasionally throughout the year.

Home Beautification

A number of Shandaken homes are entered in the county landscaping contest and to further encourage interest in home beautification it was voted to hold a flower show the last week in August. The following committee was appointed to carry out plans for the flower show: Mrs. I. D. H. Ralph, Mrs. F. M. Cleaveland, Mrs. Charles Owens, Mrs. R. B. Webster, Miss Ethel Gosseo. And that interiors of homes may be made more attractive it was voted to include in next year's program the rearrangement of living rooms and the making of household accessories.

Economy Featured

The necessities of life were not overlooked in their well rounded program. Remodeling garments, or "Bringing the Wardrobe Up-to-Date" was voted a part of the program for next year as was the serving of attractive meals at low cost. Modern methods of housecleaning was planned to be given also.

Those present at the meeting were: Miss Bertha Hunt, Miss Elizabeth Frey, Mrs. W. C. Dunn, Mrs. Frederick Ramhorst, Mrs. F. M. Cleaveland, Mrs. Ned Kelly, Mrs. Mae Van Bramer, Mrs. Edward Rowe, Mrs. Eli Miller, Mrs. Helen Whitney, Mrs. Charles Owens, Mrs. Harry Miller, Mrs. Charles Van Valkenburgh, Mrs. Fred Osterhoudt, Mrs. Fred Rosa, Mrs. Theron Townsend, Mrs. Earl Holden, Mrs. James Ford, Miss Grace Forbes, Mrs. Gordon Fear, Mrs. Abram Rider, Mrs. Carl Townsend, Mrs. R. B. Webster, Miss Evelyn Nance, Mrs. Percy White, Mrs. Willard Gulnick, Jacqueline, Mary, Fred and Nancy Rosa, Barbara and Edward Townsend, Alta and Doris Townsend, Robert and Sydney Ford and Kingsley Miller.

ASKS HOUSEWIVES TO BUY FROM LOCAL BAKERS

Editor Freeman:

This article is written with the intention of calling to mind the injustice that is being done to the bakers of Kingston. No doubt it is done thoughtlessly by many people who do not take into account the critical state of affairs, financially, which is making it so hard for the bakers of Kingston to keep up their plants. They have made a determined effort to give the people of Kingston the best bread, etc. that can, or is, produced anywhere. I allude to the seriousness of the fact that although Kingston has and always did have the reputation of producing the best bread, etc. that can be produced, the fact remains that some of Kingston's housewives are thoughtlessly patronizing the out of town bakers who infest Kingston. If these people will stop and think that the home bakers need every cent to maintain the high standard of their product, and that every cent spent by Kingston housewives and given to outside bakers goes out of town and this makes it harder for our home bakers in these critical times to pay taxes (which by-the-way are increasing) and insurance and the many other expenses, they will be fair minded enough to help, not only the bakers here but other merchants by buying what they need at home. Remember times are hard and Kingston needs every cent it can get legitimately. Help Kingston now for this is the time when every loyal Kingstonian can give a helping hand and feel that be the amount ever so small every little helps.

U. G. EDINGER.
51 West Chester street.

Cats Are Independent

"The cat is a much deeper animal than many people realize. They may not seem as intelligent to the lay observer as the dog, but if you had studied thousands of them closely, as I have," says an authority in the Boston Herald, "you would reach the conclusion not only that they are smart but that they are so smart that they are way ahead of you most of the time. Personally they fascinate me. The cat, you know, is one of the most stubborn animals living, and extremely independent. They will starve before they will change their habits. This is particularly true of pet cats. They will eat only certain things and many times they insist on having their food out of the same dish."

Wrote "Home, Sweet Home"

Is it not odd that a man who never had a home and died in a foreign land should have written the well-beloved lines of "Home, Sweet Home"? Or was it a natural expression of an inmate longing for something fine never known by experience? John Howard Payne was born in New York in 1792, and was the author of several plays, among them "Brutus," "Charles II" and "Clari, the Maid of Milan," first sung at the Covent Garden theater, London, in 1823. In the last named play occurred the famous song. He was sent to Tunis as American consul in 1841, and died there in 1852. The song was adapted to a Sicilian tune written by Sir Henry Bishop, composer of many operas.—Indianapolis News.

Dog Next to Man

"The intelligence of the dog," says Albert Payson Terhune, authority on dogs, "is so uncanny at certain times that it takes precedence over anything possessed by man. Dogs feel states of mind, attitudes, emotions which must be exhibited in clumsy words to men. Long, long ago, their first ancestors made their compact of friendship and affection with men. That friendship has grown into an intelligent bond as well as an emotional one. And the brains of the dogs have commingled with the brains of man. In many instances, the dog's brains have not been inferior."

THE KILLING

W. N. U. SERVICE

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman)

EVIDENCE was what the state needed. The police had made plenty of arrests; they had at least sixty "suspects" safe and harmless, for the brief time being, behind jail bars. Every man Jack of them—and every Jill—was a crook with a record; and every plain-clothes detective of the central office detail, and the officers in uniform who patiently and methodically had "picked them up" again on last night's orders to round up suspicious characters, knew perfectly well that each prisoner was guilty of a crime.

The trouble was to prove it and to connect the identity of each Jack and Jill with his or her most glaring dereliction in the line of "stick-up" or "peter-blowing," second-story job or confidence game. That usually is the trouble. To arrest a "known" criminal and to prove his guilt to the prompt satisfaction of a grand jury are very different matters.

Accordingly, very few of the gentlemen and of the young ladies—for all the ladies were young—who abode behind the bars upon this fine January morning were bothered by any considerable anxiety. For most of them, even for the boys under twenty and for most of the girls, the "pick up" was an old story. Any "bull" could arrest you, if he wanted to take the trouble; any cop could "paste something on you"—book you on a criminal charge, that is—but to "make it stick," to prove it, that certainly was something else again.

The bulls had not only to dig up evidence to support each charge, but they had to dig it up quick. The British earls and barons had seen to that way back in the year 1215 when they chased King John on to the swamp of Runnymede and forced him to forbid, forever, that man or woman be imprisoned save by due process of legal trial and sentence.

To all but possibly one of the gentlemen behind the bars, and beyond doubt to all of the ladies, the name of Runnymede or even of the Magna Charta would come as a complete surprise; but with the most famous fruit of the Great Charter—the writ of habeas corpus—every one was on terms of fondest familiarity. Indeed they called it by nickname, "Hayble." In behalf of each of them the inalienable right under the law would be invoked this morning, and each prisoner knew it. Moreover, it would be invoked without his having to do anything about it, for the organization "outside" would see to that.

It worked, automatically, in this way. When at liberty and at his or her round of usual activities, each Jack and Jill reported, by telephone, at certain fixed hours to one or another of a certain ring of lawyers. When a client failed to report on time, the lawyer marked his name, and when a second report period passed without a call, the lawyer, assuming that his client was arrested, could be counted upon to appear at the opening of court with a writ of habeas corpus in hand, demanding—in voice distinctly echoing the stern tones of Runnymede—by what right the court deprived a man of liberty.

Accordingly, composure characterized the bearing of the sixty-odd prisoners behind the bars. During the inaugural hours of the pick-up, there had been, to be sure, an element of uncertainty as to whether the extraordinary girl, Kitty Hewitt, who had called the cops and brought them with her to Harper Colton's, had also "spilled" to the cops what she knew. But quickly it had become clear to the sixty that she had contented herself with saving the MacLaren kid and Doctor Durand and that she was keeping her mouth shut otherwise.

But she knew too much—altogether too much for a girl who, in any cause or on behalf of any one, would call the cops.

The incident, as whispered from lips to ear about the cell tier of the jail, ran something as follows:

"Ed Pellen's 'skirt' crossed us," said lips.

"Which one?" asked ears.

"The one he's after but ain't got. Kit Hewitt. She butts in this way. A kid named MacLaren from the country comes up with a fat roll to buy some city lots. Gerve Lavvy gets the tip and takes the kid in hand."

Gerve, as every ear knew, was a gunman connected with a gambling joint run by one Grame but owned by a citizen with a respectable "front" named Harper Colton.

"Now Gerve wants to be gentle, so instead of pulling a plain 'rough' (robbing the boy by violence) he leads him to Grame's joint and lets the cards and table do their duty.

"The kid loses his roll, but, instead of going home and being good, he has to nose around—and what does he do but find out that Harper Colton is drawing down money from Grame and owns the joint. So the kid goes to Harp and says he'll expose him unless Harp pays all the money back.

"Harp gets all worked up because nobody's supposed to know he's mixing with Grame, and especially not that he's drawing down from the joint; because Harp got himself married a while ago to a swell skirt that never seen Grame and knew nothing of the joint. So Harp holds the kid and sends for Grame. Well, Grame just naturally taps the kid on the head; but he does it at the swell big house where Harp lives, and that raises a howl. Because the last thing Harp wants pulled in his house is a 'rough.'

"But Harp's wife is away and the MacLaren kid is unconscious but not quite croaked. Harp believes he's going to croak, but Harp figures he can save a lot of inquiry if he makes it look like an accident happened while falling at his house; so he stages the accident stuff and calls in Dr. Bertram Durand, because he's young and in swell society and comes of the right kind of family so that anybody would believe what he says.

"Well, Doctor Durand comes to the house and Colton pulls the accident, but Durand sees through it; and there's nothing to do but croak both the kid and Durand, when that good-looking skirt, Kitty Hewitt, butts in. She's soft on Durand and she calls the cops. Grame and Harp have just time to skip; Durand ain't hurt at all, so he gets the MacLaren kid to the hospital, where he comes to and spills his story. Well, everybody makes the big howl. They gotta clean up the city. A guy, going down the street, mindin' his own business, passes a bull he's spoke civil to every day for months, an' gets tapped on the shoulder. So here we all are!

"And all because of that Hewitt dame!"

Such was the story of effect and cause as whispered about the cell tier of the jail to those of the sixty who did not yet understand the whole reason for their detention. Another crime clean-up was on; and it had been brought about by Kitty Hewitt, who was not, herself, of the underworld, but was known to be the friend of Ed Pellen, notorious gunman.

Such was the resentment spread, with increasing intensity, throughout the various regions of the Chicago underworld on the evening of the day after the habeas corpus lawyers had done their duty and the sixty from the jail returned to their companions and confederates.

Ed Pellen had been in the pick-up. Indeed, a pick-up in Chicago which did not include Ed Pellen was on the face of it a half-hearted affair. The police always picked up Pellen, but never were able to "hold" him. And though today there was nothing proved against him, so that again he had to be released, yet the newspapers played him up as a principal in the affair. His picture was one of the three large photographs spread across the second page of the evening paper which Dr. Bertram Darand had open beside his plate as he sat down alone to his supper.

The photograph to the left, an abominable snapshot of Bertram himself, exaggerated—so it seemed to Bertram—every feature of his own ineffectiveness. It showed, to be sure, a good-looking and refined young man, but ineffective; yes, all of that, particularly in comparison with the photograph of the handsome and daring-looking young man opposite it.

The very legends under the pictures seemed to Bertram contrasts in effectiveness; for the lines describing himself said:

"Dr. Bertram Darand, who was called in by Harper Colton to witness the prepared 'accident' at Colton's residence. Doctor Durand, a young physician in practice on the north side, is the grandson of Marshall Darand, one of the leaders in Chicago thirty years ago and famous as a builder of the World's Fair. Doctor Darand's mother was a reigning belle in Chicago society."

The legend under the contrasting picture read:

"Eddie Pellen, alias Big Black, alias Walter Singer, etc., best known as 'Eddie the Immune.' Antecedents, birthplace and early environment unknown."

Between the pictures of the two men, as though between two rivals, was the photograph of a girl—a gay-looking, blithe and lovely girl, with fair hair and smiling lips and beautiful eyes gazing toward Pellen. Her legend read:

"The girl known to many members of north side society as Amy Wing, a teacher of Mah Jong. She knew Doctor Durand and, in a manner not yet explained satisfactorily, learned of his detention at Colton's home, whereupon she called the police, who rescued Durand and young MacLaren.

"Said to be identified with an extraordinary character known, in a very different sort of society, as 'Kitty Hewitt,' and to be well acquainted with Pellen."

That she herself was Kitty Hewitt, Doctor Durand knew; and, while he sat alone eating his cafeteria supper, he was speculating as to her present position in regard to Eddie Pellen. For, after having accompanied the police, whom she had called to Colton's home in time to save Durand and MacLaren, she had disappeared; and Bertram did not have to know the whispers which this day had run from lips to ears about the county jail to recognize that the girl must be in great danger because of what she had done for him.

Where was she tonight and with whom? Pellen?

Pellen undoubtedly knew where to find her, if he wanted her company; Bertram knew no more than the address which she used, under the name of Amy Wing, Mah Jong teacher; and at that address inquiry drew only a blank today. Uneasily Bertram wandered about the city streets.

A light, dry snow was falling through the air, which was almost still; it was ten degrees or so below freezing, but the night seemed only pleasantly crisp. The show-windows of the large stores were all alight, theatre and diminutive foreign girl-tered with their electric signs under which throngs of people were crowding to the doors for the opening shows. Into a corner tobacco shop Bertram walked, and bought a package of cigarets.

A thick-set man in a brown overcoat and derby was buying a cigar, and, as he turned, Bertram vaguely recognized the dark, large-featured face. Yet the fellow simply glanced at Bertram and without showing any recognition went out. Suddenly Bertram remembered him. The man was Furgrister, of the special detail of plain-clothes detectives who were working in the clean-up; Furgrister was the officer who had "picked up" Eddie Pellen this last time.

Bertram hurried out and followed with an impulse to overtake Furgrister to inquire where Pellen might now be found. Furgrister was off duty, Bertram thought; and he felt sure of this as he saw that the plain-clothes man was making for the Auditorium Theater on the next corner, where Grand Opera was on tonight.

"Bertie, hello!" the pretty daughter of Henry Fraley hailed him. "Why not come along with us? We've two extra chairs! Oh, you're not dressed—well never mind that!"

"You're getting famous," the debutante daughter of Logan Grier told him gaily. "Tonight's papers are full of you! I'm dying to hear about all the gunmen, Bertram. And that girl they say saved you."

But Bertram escaped them and stood farther away from the door but still in sight of Furgrister, who was smoking his second cigar as he gazed, idly yet curiously, at the crowd visibly diminishing. So few remained about the door that Bertram noticed for the first time that Furgrister evidently had had a companion on watch beside him. The men did not speak, they merely glanced at each other, whereupon Furgrister moved away, leaving the other on watch. Following Furgrister, Bertram was led around the corner to the entrance for the galleries, where a man approached Furgrister and, merely with a shake of his head, made a negative report. Furgrister stepped into the pharmacy upon the corner and entered a telephone booth. He was making his report, Bertram thought; but in a moment, when Furgrister emerged, it was plain that he had learned something, too. His manner had become suddenly alert. He stepped to the curb and signaled a taxi; and Bertram walked up beside him.

"Get in," he said abruptly to Bertram, recognizing him and commanding him at the same instant. He held the door open and Bertram got in. "Cleahy's," the plain-clothes man directed the driver. "D'you know it?"

"Sure!" said the youth at the wheel expectantly.

"Make it snappy," ordered Furgrister, and the driver started at it so snappily that Furgrister bounded against Bertram as he seated himself.

"All right now, doctor," he invited, in excellent spirits. "Tell it to me."

"I saw you in the cigar store," began Bertram, and knew that it was a stupid opening.

"The smoke there didn't bother my eyes," said Furgrister.

"I mean," said Bertram, "when I saw you I wanted to ask about Pellen."

"Pellen?" repeated Furgrister.

"Pellen," said Bertram.

"Well, it's all the same thing," said Furgrister. "She's with him."

"Kitty Hewitt, you mean?"

"Didn't you?"

"Yes. Where are they?"

"Did you catch where I told the cab to go?"

"Cleahy's, you said."

"That's the place."

Bertram cleared his throat and demanded boldly: "What's on tonight at Cleahy's?"

Furgrister chewed his cigar and shook his head. "You'll see, doctor! By—you're a doctor, ain't you? Right on hand, a doctor!

Bertram sat back in his seat beside Plain-Clothes Officer Furgrister. Cheer filled Officer Furgrister; with each mile clicked off by the cab he showed himself more and more gratified with his anticipations; but his satisfaction never made him more communicative. In contrast to him, with each mile Bertram Durand became more filled with foreboding. Thus, after half an hour's ride together, they came at last to the white-pillared, gay facade of Cleahy's cafe.

At their elbows entered eager, honestly hurrying couples: a shipping-clerk with a check-out girl, an accountant with his comptometer operator, a clothing-house "cutter" with a dark-haired, black-eyed buttonhole-maker; to these Cleahy's was an aspiration.

"Come on Kit," He Commanded Loudly. "You Takin' Orders From Him? Well, I Ain't. You and Me Are Gonna Dance."

Of course the demi-monde was represented in that large inner hall of Cleahy's where a hundred tables with places for four or six at each, clustered about the shining dance-floor.

Such, upon this January night, was Cleahy's, where music was playing as Doctor Darand entered beside Plain-Clothes Officer Furgrister. The wide oblong of the dance-floor was half filled, although it was little after nine o'clock; for Cleahy made a specialty of dinners and had as famous a chef as there was in the city. Most of the couples now dancing probably had dined here; and this speculation caught Bertram Darand with sharp poignancy as he recognized upon the dance-floor Kitty Hewitt in the arms of Eddie the Immune.

Then Bertram heard the blonde Miss Fisher speaking.

"You came quick, Len," she said to the plain-clothes officer.

"I like to be in time, Kate," said Furgrister, tilting back in his chair and lighting another cigar.

"Shall we dance?" murmured Doctor Darand to the pretty girl at his side.

"I'd like to," she said.

As they moved out upon the floor, he saw that Kitty Hewitt and Pellen were not leaving their table in the corner. But Kitty Hewitt gazed at Bertram and nodded to him, then she glanced at the girl with him and nodded more slightly, whereupon Sallie Keller inclined her dark head. Pellen still paid no attention to Furgrister or Bertram, or to either of their partners.

"You know her?" said Bertram, as they danced.

"Sure I know her," said Sallie Keller.

"You know him?"

"Sure I do."

Adroitly Bertram steered her through the maze of dancers to a vacant corner of the floor that they might talk without being overheard. "What's on here tonight?" he asked.

"What would you think would be on after—" Sallie said suggestively and stopped.

"After what?" demanded Bertram.

"Her calling the cops—double-crossing Pellen's mob."

"You mean when she came to Colton's house for me?"

"Hm-m," nodded Sallie. "That made her popular with Grame, don't you think?"

"Grame?" repeated Bertram.

"But he won't hurt her. Eddie's the guy Grame wants."

"Grame?" said Bertram again. "You mean Grame is coming here—to get him tonight?"

Sallie laughed. "How do I know who's coming? Only—Grame ain't no book."

The music stopped now; and then an encore played. But Bertram's dancing became mechanical.

A new party of four had come in and were taking a table to the right of Officer Furgrister and ten yards or so away from Kitty Hewitt and Ed Pellen. Furgrister and the girls also were observing them; two young men they were, and two girls; and one of the men, at least, looked familiar to Bertram.

"Gerve Lavvy!" Bertram heard the Fisher girl whisper to Furgrister. At the name the detective nodded with satisfaction. So Grame's agents had arrived and the chief of them was Gerve Lavvy, a gunman and runner for the gambling-house just closed. He was a pale, impeccably garbed youth with a rat-like face and furtive eyes.

It was a few minutes after twelve—testimony afterward proved it was almost precisely ten minutes after midnight—when Pellen, in the corner, offered the opening for which Gerve Lavvy proved to have been waiting. Pellen seemed to be satisfied that he had stayed long enough after Lavvy's arrival; Pellen signaled his waiter and called for his check.

Now Gerve Lavvy arose; and the three others at his table watched him. Furgrister watched him; so did Kate Fisher and Sallie Keller and Doctor Darand. But Bertram gazed also at the table in the corner and he saw that Pellen's eyes were upon Grame's agent and so were Kitty Hewitt's eyes, too. They understood what Bertram also was comprehending; the paying of Pellen's check was the signal for which the four at Lavvy's table had been waiting.

Pellen now did a deliberate and noticeable thing. He leaned forward a trifle and placed his hands upon his table; they were open and palm downward and spread so that any one could see they were empty. He spoke shortly to Kitty Hewitt and Bertram saw her look at Pellen's hands; then she glanced swiftly across to the police table. Bertram thought that her eyes for a second met his, but they did not linger. They went to Gerve Lavvy, who was standing beside his own table; then with peculiar, stiff steps—as though Lavvy felt his knees not quite dependable—he strode toward Kitty Hewitt and Pellen.

"Hello, Ed," Lavvy hailed, not quite steadily, when he was a few feet off.

"Hello," replied Pellen in a lower tone, but steadily. Kitty Hewitt did not speak and Pellen did not move. In particular Bertram noticed that he kept his hands palm downward upon the top of the table.

"Hello Kit," Lavvy addressed the girl now.

If she made an answer, Bertram did not hear it.

Lavvy took a couple more steps with his queer, stiff-kneed walk and reached the table and leaned one hand upon it.

"You ain't goin', Ed?" asked Lavvy.

"I'm through here now," said Pellen.

"I ain't," returned Lavvy sharply. "I want a dance and I want it with Kit."

"She's going with me," answered Pellen quietly.

"Oh, no!" Lavvy's pale, rat-like face twitched. "Not if I want her, she ain't!"

"Not if you want her!" repeated Pellen and took a step forward and spoke to Lavvy in a whisper which Bertram could not hear. For an instant Grame's agent recoiled; then, drunk with cocaine, he stepped forward with a wavering gesture and leered down at Kitty.

"Come on, Kit," he commanded loudly. "You takin' orders from him? Well, I ain't. You and me are gonna dance."

"Beat it," warned Pellen curtly; but Lavvy reached a hand toward Kitty.

"Ed!" cried Kitty and grasped at his arm in her appeal. "Ed, don't mind him!—I don't."

Now Lavvy addressed her. "You're gonna dance with me, kid!" And he snatched at her.

With a choking sound, Pellen lunged forward. Then Kitty Hewitt was beside him; grasping his arm, trying to pull him away, pleading with him. But he flung her aside; and as she stumbled from the force with which Pellen had thrown her off, Doctor Durand stood up.

He realized only as he saw her catch her balance a couple of yards from her table that the girls next to him were scurrying aside. Just then Furgrister leaped out of the way, and in that instant shots roared—one and two, and three! The gas of the smokeless powder stung in Doctor Durand's nostrils; and he beheld at his feet Lavvy, lying crumpled, motionless upon the floor. Pellen was standing over him, a blue automatic in his hand. There came a rush. Arms from behind seized Pellen and Plain-Clothes Officer Furgrister advanced with a revolver, covering him.

Panic shook the room, with women screaming, men shouting and a hundred people jamming the door at once. In that first moment of the panic Doctor Durand stood dazed; then he knelt beside the man on the floor at his feet and automatically, as a surgeon, set about examining his wound.

"I got him all right." It was Eddie Pellen's hard, clear voice which Bertram at first thought spoke to him. "Don't worry," said the voice. "I got him." Then Bertram realized that Pellen was speaking to Kitty Hewitt.

Another voice addressed Bertram. "How is he, doctor? How is he?" This was Furgrister.

"Dead," replied Bertram.

"Well," demanded Pellen's voice, "it had to be, didn't it?"

"Too bad, Ed," said the plain-clothes man hoarsely. "You're in for it this time."

"You saw it!" Kitty Hewitt's voice rose hysterically. "All these people saw it! Lavvy picked a quarrel—you all saw him do it!"

Pellen put out his hand to quiet her. "It's 'framed,' Kit; of course it's 'framed.' They're going to railroad me."

"They shan't!"

"Come on," ordered Furgrister, and he started Pellen for the door. Two detectives followed close behind; outside, the "wagon"—it really was a motor-wagon—was waiting and without more ado they put Pellen in.

"Take me with him!" Kitty Hewitt begged; but they thrust her back and the police car drove off.

"I'll take her home." Bertram said and freed her from the officer's grasp. He turned to Cleahy, the proprietor of the place, who was close beside him. "Can you give me a room—your office will do—for a few moments?"

Cleahy showed them the office and went out, closing the door.

She sank upon a chair and her head fell forward and her shoulders were shaken with pitiful sobs. Beside her Bertram stood, trying to collect his thoughts.

Kitty Hewitt controlled her sobbing and repeated: "They'll railroad him. They'll railroad him." She reiterated the bitter phrase for false evidence given to convict. "That's what they mean to do."

Did they mean to "railroad" him? Bertram wondered. Or had they seen Pellen draw his gun first and shoot? No one, not a person in all the room, had come to support Kitty Hewitt when she had cried out her testimony against the police. And hers must be prejudiced evidence, if any way. If the police would have seen the fact only as they wished to see it, was it not equally true that she would have seen what she wished?

Bertram said, thinking of this, "What is he to you?"

"Nothing!" she denied. "Nothing! Absolutely nothing at all!"

"Nothing!" cried Bertram. "That can't be true."

"I mean, I'm not his wife or his woman or even engaged to him. Nothing, nothing at all is between us. No one can say there is. I can give my honest evidence for him."

"What is he to you, then?" Bertram asked again.

"I'll tell you! We grew up like brother and sister together. The same thing had happened to us. We didn't have any people. I didn't have any at all. He had his mother. She took me in; she brought me up. When she got sick, Eddie tried to take care of his mother and me and himself. The first crooked job he got in was for me. Of course I didn't know it. He was in love with me. He wanted to give me things; then he got in deeper and deeper. But he never—murdered. And he didn't tonight. You saw it, doctor. You'll swear to the truth with me, won't you? Won't you?"

Doctor Darand knelt beside her. "God help me, Kitty," he cried, "I didn't see it. When they fired, I was looking at you."

"Oh!" she sobbed. "Oh!" She tossed up her head and stared at him and saw he was telling the truth.

"Then they got him. They got him. For him, there's just me. But you'll stand by me, doctor, all you can, won't you? You're the only friend I have now, free, in the world."

"I'll stand by you," Bertram said, "you can be absolutely sure."

Dr. Bertram Darand, grandson of Marshal Darand and son of a once-reigning belle of Chicago society, telephoned at one o'clock that morning to Mrs. Henry Fraley, who had been a friend of his mother's. Never would Bertram have appealed to his mother's friend directly for himself; but tonight he needed a safe refuge, among his own people, for Kitty Hewitt, and it was offered her, and so, in the same hour, he took her to the Fraleys' home on the Drive.

He had made explanation in advance, so when he brought Kitty to the graystone mansion Mrs. Fraley asked no question but took the girl at once to her care and put her to bed.

Bertram waited below and at last his mother's friend came down to him. "I believe she's the loveliest creature I have ever seen," Mrs. Fraley said.

"She's the loveliest I've ever met," said Bertram. "Take care of her—awfully good care. Oh, I know you will. But she's had a different sort of deal in life from any other girl you ever knew."

Morning newspapers began to appear; and in the dawn of light, as once before, Doctor Durand read the headlines of an exploit of Eddie the Immune; but this time the headlines told that "they" had him. He had shot a man before a score of eye-witnesses who had thrown a net of evidence around him from which he could never escape.

THE FRUIT OF ENDURANCE

When a worried-looking man applied for settlement of a claim for fire insurance, the agent asked: "Much damage?"

"Not much," the man said; "just a door."

"How much would a new door cost?"

"About $5."

"When did the fire happen?"

The man hesitated a moment, and then replied: "About thirty years ago."

"Thirty years ago?"

"Yes."

"And you've waited all these years to report it?"

"Yes."

"How did that happen?"

"Well," said the man, "my wife has been at me to do something about that door ever since it was burned, and I couldn't stand it any longer."—Idaho Farmer.

Easy for Him

The jealous wife of a theatrical manager was peeved when he came home and announced that he had that day selected from a big crowd 24 wonderful chorus girls.

"I suppose," she declared, sarcastically, "it was very difficult work for you?"

"Oh, no, dear," he told her. "Simply a matter of form."—Stray Stories Magazine.

BACK UP!

Judge—Are you sure that he was flat on his back after the accused hit him?

Witness—Well, as near as he could be, considering how round-shouldered he is.

Aviation Fan

Grandma had finally yielded to the repeated urging of a grandson to accompany him on a flight. Up and up they went until the youthful pilot leaned back and shouted: "Do you realize that we are 7,500 feet up?"

"Oh, I don't mind that," said the old lady bravely, "but don't you think it's cool enough for you to turn off the fan?"—Montreal Gazette.

Not Back-Fence Neighbors

"Where's your home?" asked the country child of a city visitor.

"In Washington," replied the city child.

"Why, that's where the President lives, isn't it?"

"Yes," was the reply, "but not on our street."—Boston Transcript.

When the Crow Is Afoot

Hunger Marcher—How far is it to Washington?

Farmer—Well, it's about 60 miles as the crow flies.

Marcher—Yes, but how far is it if the darned crow has to walk and carry a pack with him?

PLAIN ENOUGH

First Biddy—I can't understand why Mrs. Plymouth Rock is opposed to votes for hens.

Second Biddy—What else would you expect from one who insists on hatching her own eggs?

Too Many

He—Have you ever kissed a man before?

She—I-yes.

He—Tell me his name so that I can thrash him.

She—But—but—he might be too many for you.

Ellipsis

"I noticed," remarked the purist, "that just now you said, 'Between you and I.'"

"My mistake," said the other man. "What I meant to say was, 'Between you and I and the gatepost.'"—Boston Transcript.

Paradox

"You say that all you want to do is to talk plain common sense?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "The trouble is that the kind of sense referred to as 'common' is at times so exceedingly unusual." — Washington Star.

Municipal Job

"I hear your brother's working."

"Yes."

"How long has he been at it?"

"Three months."

"What's he doing?"

"Six."

Bahama Islands

There are 700 islands in the Bahama group and nearly three times as many rocks which extend above high water. The islands, only twenty of which are inhabited, comprise a chain beginning with Grand Bahama and the Bimini and extending over 700 miles in a southeasterly direction to Inagua, from where on a clear day the mountains at the eastern end of Cuba may be seen. One of their chief claims to fame is the fact that they were discovered by Columbus, San Salvador or Watlings island having been his first landfall on October 12, 1492.

1,400,000 FOUND TO BE FEEBLE-MINDED

Disclosures Made in Sage Foundation Survey.

New York.—Fifteen per cent of the total population of the United States is intellectually subnormal or retarded.

More than one-half of the 600,000 hospital beds in America are set aside for the mentally ill.

More than 1,400,000 persons in America are feeble-minded.

These startling figures on mental health are contained in a report of a survey just completed by the Russell Sage foundation covering the work of organized social forces of the country.

Feeble-Minded a Problem.

To help meet the problem of the feeble-minded, forty-four states maintain state institutions for their care. In 268 cities of the country subnormal children are enrolled in special classes.

The survey shows humanitarian activities of various charities and the new work added to their burden by the depression.

Family life is given prominent attention by social scientists. Marriage guidance bureaus have recently been established in the states of California, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania where persons contemplating marriage may secure advice and where those involved in marital difficulties may take their troubles.

The last three years have also shown a marked increase in the number of centers where birth control information is given, in accordance with the laws of the respective states. Over 100 such centers are reported in operation by Mrs. Margaret Sanger, as against approximately fifty-five reported by her in 1929.

Efforts to preserve the values of home life for the child where the mother has been widowed or the bread-earner otherwise removed are represented by mothers' aid laws which have been enacted in all states except Georgia and South Carolina. Homes involving 256,000 children were so aided in 1930. For mothers who must work, more than 800 day nurseries have been established in cities all over the United States, charging a nominal five to twenty-five cents a day. There have also been set up 4,178 child health centers.

Park Movement Grows.

In the fields of recreation and self-improvement, the park movement has grown until recent figures indicate 11,686 city parks representing property value exceeding $2,000,000,000. In addition to the city parks there are state parks in forty-three of the states, covering 7,000,000 acres; national parks covering 10,000,000 acres and national forests, most of which are open to recreational use, covering an additional 150,000,000 acres. Excluding the national forests, which are set apart more particularly for economic than recreational purposes, the remaining park acreage is nevertheless larger than the combined area of Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Long Bus Tour Will Be Part of College Course

Atlanta, Ga.—Oglethorpe university, Atlanta, will conduct a 10,000 mile bus tour through the United States, Canada and Mexico this summer as a regular academic course, Dr. Wallace M. Cunningham, dean of the university's school of banking and commerce, announced.

Recreation, education, and travel combined will be offered by the "summer course," which will leave here June 30 for the Chicago World's Fair, then to San Francisco, into Canada, down the Pacific coast to Mexico, and return here August 30.

Travels Five and Half Hours to Attend School

San Francisco, Calif.—Ernest Rossoni of Crockett, Calif., spend 5½ hours commuting every day in order that he may spend seven hours in class.

Ernest is studying watchmaking at a local school. It takes him two hours and 45 minutes to travel from home to the school. He leaves home at four o'clock each morning in order that he may get through in time to start home 5:45 p. m. He reaches home about 8:30 p. m.

Historic Pennsylvania Tavern Will Be Razed

Claysville, Pa.—The historic Bell tavern of Claysville, believed a century old and scene of a reception by President Grant, is to be razed.

The two story brick and wood structure, located along the national highway, was used as a supply base for the Union army during the Civil war.

When President Grant visited his friend, William Smith, in Washington, Pa., near here, the two drove to Bell tavern, where they received Claysville residents.

Large Butterfly House Pet in Woman's Home

Marion, Ohio.—When Mrs. J. H. Dildine rescued a cocoon from a bush to be uprooted she found an unusual pet. Shortly after, it hatched into a "Jasper," a large butterfly with a six-inch wingspread. Despite opinion that a butterfly cannot live indoors, the moth thrives in a nursery and takes an occasional flight through the house.

Roller Canaries

Among roller canaries it is generally the case that the quietest birds learn the highest priced notes. Birds that are more excitable are likely to become nervous easily and to break into sharp, detached notes which mar their song.

Society Notes

Brackman-Wood

Ellenville, June 9.—Miss Bertha Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wood of Ellenville, and Morgan Brackman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Brackman of Napanoch, were married Friday evening, June 2, in the Methodist parsonage of Liberty, by the Rev. Joseph W. Chaser. Thomas Brackman, brother of the bridegroom, and Miss Evelyn Wood, sister of the bride, witnessed the marriage.

Engagement Announced

Ellenville, June 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Patterson of Valhalla, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Janice Patterson, to Robert Standish Wilkins, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Alfred M. Wilkins of this village. Miss Patterson attended Barnard College and the Miller School, and is now secretary to Senator Seabury C. Mastick. Mr. Wilkins attended Colgate University and is now with the Westchester Lighting Company. The date of the wedding has not been decided upon.

Mills-Fulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fulton of Port Ewen wish to announce the marriage of their daughter, Beatrice E., to Alfred R. Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mills of Scottsville, on Saturday, June 3. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John J. Lawrence, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Rochester. They were attended by Miss Marjory Davy of Byron, cousin of the groom, and Maurice Mills of Scottsville, brother of the groom. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Mills will reside at Scottsville.

Wismer-Sarff

New York, June 8 (Special)—Jack Wismer, 42, a hotel proprietor, widower, of Highmount, and Mrs. Eliza L. Sarff, 40, a widow, of the Times Square Hotel, New York, were married today in the Municipal Building here soon after they obtained a marriage license. The ceremony was performed by Deputy City Clerk Philip A. Hines officiating in the City Chapel. Mr. Wismer's first wife died last year. He was born in Zurich, Switzerland, the son of Jack and Luise G. Wismer. Mrs. Sarff has been a widow since 1924. She was born in Bannock, O., the daughter of James M. and Harriet Marmie Hutton.

Grosch-Meier.

Ellenville, June 9.—Raymond A. Grosch, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Grosch, of this village, and Miss Katherine Shirley Meier of Richmond Hill were married in the Child of Jesus Roman Catholic Church in Richmond Hill, on Sunday afternoon, June 4 at five o'clock. Andrew Hoffman, a former Ellenville resident, and a boyhood friend of the bridegroom, was best man, while Mrs. Hoffman acted as matron of honor. A reception for 15 members of the immediate families followed the wedding ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Grosch arrived here on Monday and spent the week at the home of the former's sisters, the Misses Margaret and Anna Grosch, of Church street. Mr. Grosch spent his boyhood in Ellenville and attended the Ellenville schools. For several years, however, he has been a resident of Woodhaven. He is associated with a Brooklyn plumbing concern. He and his bride will make their home temporarily with Mrs. Grosch's sister in Richmond Hill. Among the guests from Ellenville who attended the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Madden, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom, who were accompanied by their son; the Misses Margaret and Anna Grosch, sisters of the bridegroom; John Marshall and Mrs. Stanley Stickles. Among the former Ellenville residents who were present at the ceremony were, Mrs. Jack Feeney, Mrs. John Horn, Mrs. John Rosenberger, Mrs. Gussie Rosenberger of New York city, and Mr. and Mrs. Jessie B. Mayforth of Nassau county.

Pumps Keep Lakes Filled

Water—4,400,000,000 gallons of it—is used every year to maintain the levels of 12 lakes in Ramsey county, Minn. The water is pumped from wells, ranging in depth from 450 to 600 feet, to combat droughts.

HURLEY

Hurley, June 9.—The Women's Missionary Society of the Hurley Reformed Church is making plans to hold a strawberry and ice cream festival on the parsonage lawn Friday, June 23, beginning at five o'clock. There will also be cake, sandwiches, and coffee on sale. At 7:30 o'clock an entertainment will be given in the lecture room of the church. A free-will offering will be taken. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the Hurley Church.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Smith spent the week-end with their son, Levan, in New York city and Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Silkworth of Schenectady and little granddaughter are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Grant Smith.

Mrs. M. B. Cameron has purchased a new five passenger Plymouth car. She is also erecting a new two-car garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hasbrouck of Jersey City were guests recently of Mr. and Mrs. John Ostrander.

Ralph Hiller, the contractor, is building a house for Ray Crispell at Mt. Marion. He is also making improvements in the home of Peter Elmendorf, installing a bathroom and fixtures.

Mrs. Benjamin Dunn spent a few days last week with friends in Kerhonkson.

Ice Age Predicted

Sooner or later the earth will run into a cosmic fog, according to Dr. Harlan A. Stetson, former astronomy professor at Harvard, and when it does it will pass through another ice age. Such fogs, he points out, do exist in the universe, and with the world moving through space at 11 miles a second, it is bound to meet one sooner or later.

Repealers Held To 5-5 Deadlock By Hardwaremen

The lowly Herzog Hardwaremen rose to their highest at the Athletic Field Thursday evening and managed to hold the league-leading Morgan Repealers to a 5 to 5 score. The Hardwaremen displayed a much better brand of ball in this game than they have shown heretofore this season. Previously they dropped five decisions and tied for one.

Jimmy Doyle, who throws them from the portside, again was on the mound for the Repealers and fared much better than he did in his other starts. He went along fine in the early frames, but weakened in the latter stages and just managed to struggle through. He developed a streak of wildness in the fifth inning and it came near causing his downfall.

Ed Flamming opposed Doyle in the box and was just the reverse of Doyle. Instead of a good start he got off wobbly, but after the third inning he settled down and had the Repealers eating out of his hand. Twice while in a pinch he fanned the last two batters to face him. In all he set down eight of the Repealers by way of the strikeout route.

Charlie Tiano fashioned his second home run of the season and Joie Hoffman garnered three singles to lead the batters. Tiano's homer was a long liner over Flanagan's head in center field and came with a runner aboard the sacks. Harold Clayton also got a long distance hit, a triple to left field, which sent in two runners to tie the score in the last inning.

Fritz Bruhn received free transportation to first base to start the game. Hoffman singled to center field and Bruhn advanced to third base. Knight singled to left field to send F. Bruhn and Lutz Bruhn singled to right field to score Hoffman and give the Repealers a two-run advantage.

A walk to L. Bruhn started the Repealers off on another rampage in the third inning. He reached second on an infield out and registered on Davitt's single to right field. Hotaling in right field let the ball get past him and Davitt scurried to third base. Tiano then inserted his homer and the Repealers had five runs while the Herzogs as yet had failed to score.

The Hardwaremen's first run came in the fourth inning, the result of an error by Davitt on LaPrairie's grounder and a single by G. Flemings.

Walks to E. Flemming and Clayton, coupled with a force and single by LaPrairie gave the Hardwaremen two more runs in the fifth inning. A single by E. Flemming, a walk to Winne and Clayton's triple knotted the score 5-5 in the seventh inning and the game finished that way.

SIDELINERS

It is rumored that the contest will be protested on account of the Hardwaremen using ineligible players. If so the Repealers will have another win to their credit as any team that breaks the rule forfeits the game if protested.

---

Tommy Davitt made a spectacular stop of Whiston's grounder in the sixth inning and robbed him of a base hit.

---

The Hardwaremen are destined for the cellar in the first half of the City League, but with their improved lineup they should do much better in the second half.

Schmeling's Conqueror

MAX BAER

Baer Batters Schmeling In Sensational Fight

By GALE TALBOT,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, June 9 (AP).—A roistering young blade from out of the west, with thunder in his brawny fists and all the "killer instinct" he has any use for, stood today a threatening menace to Jack Sharkey's heavyweight crown.

Victor last night over Max Schmeling by a crushing tenth round knockout that left 56,000 spectators pop-eyed with amazement, Max Baer, of California, established himself the greatest young heavyweight to crash the big scene since Jack Dempsey whittled down Jess Willard at Toledo.

Wants to be Champ.

"I'm going to win that championship!" he shouted as a shower swept away every trace of the combat. Not one of the vast crowd that saw him floor Schmeling with a murderous right and then, a few seconds later, leave the former champion hanging on the ropes, helpless, will argue the point.

A minute and 51 seconds of the tenth round had ticked away when Referee Arthur Donovan stepped forward, mercifully, to lift Baer's hand and spare the game German further punishment. Sagging, ready to drop, his guard down and his eyes glazed, Schmeling was an open target for a punch that might have done lasting injury. There wasn't a dissenting voice from the massed thousands in Yankee Stadium.

Jack and Primo Look On.

The scene was an eye-full for Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera, both of whom peered attentively from ringside chairs as Baer, a far greater fighter than he had been given credit for, battered down his man. One or the other, the victor in their championship fight later in the month, probably will get a chance to sample the Baer dynamite, and it is doubtful now that either relishes the prospect.

Fighting as he did last night, at the same vicious pitch, the man from California would be a favorite to tear through Sharkey's guard and stretch him on the canvas, or to cut down the gigantic Carnera with the fury of his atack. He apparently is immune to punishment, and his own right is like the kick of a mule.

Too Much Dynamite.

"I don't know what happened," said the dazed Schmeling as he sat disconsolate, removing his ring togs. It was evident the sudden, sharp conclusion of the combat, five rounds before the scheduled finish, had left him shell-shocked.

"He wasn't hurting me, so I got careless and opened up. Wham, I thought a house had fallen on me."

It was the first time Schmeling had been on the floor since he first came to the United States five years ago, he had built up a legend of immunity to the stiffest punches, but he hadn't run into a right like the one Baer was tossing last night.

The only blemish attached to the young Californian's triumph was his frequent use of a backhand blow that brought warnings from the referee and razzberries from the crowd. Baer used it at times like he was punching a bag, when he backed Schmeling into the ropes and beat away at him calmly, brutally. But the audience forgave him that after the big climax.

Baer Opened Up Early.

So confident was Baer's manager, Ancil Hoffman, of the ultimate result that he sent his superbly conditioned young man into the battle with absolute orders not to open up until after the fifth round. That despite odds which were as high as 4 to 1 in Schmeling's favor at fight time.

Baer, however, couldn't resist the temptation to wing a few, and in the first two rounds he launched two-fisted attacks that beat his unwilling antagonist all over the ring. That satisfied him, and from there on he was content to bide his time.

Schmeling, taking advantage of Baer's let up, crowded in with a short, sharp attack that won him his only three rounds of the fight, the fourth, sixth and seventh. Experts at the ringside settled back, confident the Californian had shot his bolt, that the German would slowly, efficiently cut him to pieces the rest of the way. The crowd booed the Livermore product heartily as he backed around listlessly, or stood in his corner and let Schmeling pour in blows.

Schmeling Takes Count.

Then came the fireworks. Starting the eighth, Baer really began coming over the mountain. He rushed out with a mean look on his face for the first time. No longer smiling, and he socked Schmeling with everything in the book, both at long and short range.

In the ninth he nailed the German against the ropes twice and measured him with terrific wallops to the jaw. When Schmeling's guard went up, fists dug into his middle. They were in a furious mixup at the bell, slugging away until the referee parted them. Schmeling stumbled once as he walked to his corner.

Baer wasted little time finishing his man in the tenth. They came out of a clinch in mid-ring, when the Californian's right darted out like the head of a cobra and thudded on the point of Schmeling's jaw. Down he went, sprawling on his back, then rolled over to watch the knockdown timekeeper. He barely rose as the count reached nine.

Serious as a cyclone for perhaps the first time in his jolly young life, Baer sailed into his battered rival with a flurry of punches. Schmeling covered up, slid along the ropes in a desperate effort to escape. But Baer was on top of him, throwing his 203 pounds into every shot.

A left doubled Schmeling up, and a right sent him slumping against the post in a neutral corner. And that was the end.

The crowd paid $239,195.55 to witness one of the most sensational battles of recent years and to assure a fair profit for Jack Dempsey in his first big promotorial venture.

DEMPSEY PLANS TOUR OF COUNTRY FOR BAER

New York, June 10 (AP).—No grass is going to grow under Max Baer's feet if Jack Dempsey can help it.

With the Californian's name now a sports headliner, Dempsey plans a whirlwind exhibition tour, coast to coast, starting within the next ten days. Max Baer will box and Dempsey will referee, the combination of the "New Dempsey" and the old one is expected to draw large—and profitable—crowds across the country.

Plans are only tentative, but Dempsey indicated today the tour might start at Buffalo, swing through the middlewest and finish in the west coast.

Dempsey plans to seek a match for Baer in September with the winner of the coming Sharkey-Carnera fight.

Tagging Major League Bases

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.,
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Philadelphia fans figuratively shedding tears over the failure of Jimmie Foxx to live up to the proud boasts they made for him when he clouted 58 home runs last season apparently can dry their eyes and start cheering him on toward record achievements once more.

Jimmie looked much like the clouter of 1932, when he blasted his way back into the thick of the fight at the expense of the mighty Yankees yesterday. With the redoubtable Lefty Gomez as his mound opponent, Foxx crashed three home runs, batted in five tallies and was a leading figure in the 15 hit attack that gave the Athletics their first victory of the season over the Yankees, 14 to 11.

For a while, Foxx was tied with Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig for the big league home run lead with 11, but after the A's had put the game away with a six run tally in the eighth, the Babe reasserted his supremacy by pasting his twelfth.

Another Philadelphia-New York game was decided on long distance slugging as the Giants, who have given New York a monopoly on first-places for the first time in years, turned back the Phillies, 7-6. Mel Ott's seventh homer of the year was the winning blow after four baggers by Homer Peel and Bill Terry had brought in the other Giant runs.

Washington's Senators cut loose against Boston with 17 hits in the second game of a doubleheader to win 12-3 after they had "blown" a 4-3 decision in the opener. The even break gave them second place in the American League once more as Detroit ended the six-game winning streak of the Chicago White Sox with an eleven inning, 3-2 triumph when Catcher Frank Grube dropped a throw and let the winning run count.

The St. Louis Browns continued Cleveland's losing streak to five games by pounding out a 5-3 decision.

Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals outpointed Lonnie Warneke of the Chicago Cubs, giving only three hits to win 2-1. The victory kept the Cards only a few points behind the Giants while Chicago lost a good chance to take third place when the Pittsburgh Pirates suffered an 8-2 setback at the hands of the Cincinnati Reds and their old "jinx" moundsman, Eppa Rixey.

Yesterday's STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Joe Kuhel, Senators — Rapped Boston pitching for two doubles and four singles in doubleheader.

Carl Hubbell, Giants—Held one run lead through last four innings, holding Phillies to one hit.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

If Ojo Dutra, the heavyweight Californian golfing professional, doesn't sustain his championship pace of 1932 it will not be for lack of concentration, detailed study or proper training methods.

He has built himself up to a mere six pounds for the current campaign including the American Open, the Ryder Cup matches abroad and the British Open. All within the space of a month. He has practiced pitch-and-run shots especially for his first trip to England and studied wind conditions. He has read up on energy expenditure and how to prepare it by munching lumps of sugar during competition.

Dutra has a good disposition and playing temperament to start with. He also has the physical qualifications essential to withstanding a week-long grind of 18 or 72 holes per day. He's a long, accurate hitter and he has his moments of inspiration on the greens, an essential to the playing equipment of any champion. He had more tournament rounds under 70 last year than any other star, including Gene Sarazen, but he was no match for Gene when they met in Florida last winter.

It would be asking too much of the Californian to duplicate some of the stunts he pulled in 1932, during a prolonged low-scoring spree, but if he has his game under control he will be a factor in any big money or title tournament he enters. He's especially keen to make a good showing on the other side but concedes he will be under the handicap of inexperience with actual British conditions.

Long Hitting At Premium.

Dutra certainly belongs among the half-dozen players who should be in the top group of favorites for the Battle of Chicago starting June 8.

Because long-hitting and accurate hitting is going to be at a premium on the North Shore links, I would list their chances about in this order:

Gene Sarazen, Craig Wood, Leo Diegel, Olin Dutra, Walter Hagen and Bobby Cruickshank.

If it's necessary to search further for the winner, he should be found in this company: Harry Cooper, Tom Armour, Paul Runyan, Johnny Farrell, Billie Burke, Willy Cox, Macdonald Smith, and George Van Elm.

Tough In Wet Weather.

The last time Dutra tried out the North Shore layout it was soggy from the effects of a long spell of rain. There were several par four holes he failed to reach with a drive and brassie, under conditions which stopped any roll of the ball whatsoever. He carded a 75 for the round.

"That will give you some idea of how tough it is," said the Californian. "If it dries out sufficiently before the championship, however, it will take 290 or better to win in all probability."

Last year, at Fresh Meadow, Long Island, Sarazen led the pack with 286, tying the American Open record, while Phil Perkins and Bobby Cruickshank finished in a tie for second place at 289.

North Rondouters To Play Port Ewen

The North Rondout Social Club baseball team will play the Port Ewen Firemen Sunday afternoon at Hercules field, Port Ewen, which is expected to be crowded for the game. Both clubs will use their regular lineups, Manager Tesslo, of the N. R. S., depending on the following players: J. Celuca, 1b; R. Roskoski, 2b; E. Mitchell, ss; J. MacDonald, 3b; E. Long, rf; J. Banyo, cf; G. Hart, lf; E. Baker, p; DeCicco, c. Reserves—Williams, Komasa, Sello and Gardner.

P. N. A. WILL GO TO STONE RIDGE SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon the P. N. A. baseball team plays at Stone Ridge against the team of that village which is expected to give the Polish lads a tough battle. So far the P. N. A. has played out of town twice. On both occasions it lost, once at Poughkeepsie and the other time at Wallkill. Manager Janeczek hopes his boys will break the away-from-home jinx against the Ridgers. Batteries for the teams have not been announced.

NORTH RONDOUT A. C. WALLOPS HIGGINSVILLE

The Higginsville Clowns were no match for the North Rondout A. C. at the Fair Grounds Thursday evening, so the score indicates. At the end of the battle the North Rondouters were ahead 20-1.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the North Rondout team will meet the Sawkill nine at Terry's brickyard.

Teams wishing to book the N. R's. should 'phone 1557-M.

Pan-Am Club Signs Paul Joyce for 1b

Manager "Dutch" Glaser has announced that Paul Joyce, one of the best first basemen in these parts, is now a member of the Pan-Ams, he having signed to play with the local team for the remainder of the season.

Joyce, who started his career on the Kingston High School varsity nine, seems service in the pitcher's box as well as at first base, played for the past three years with the Saugerties Bushwicks. Last Sunday he was that club's main cog in defeating the Pan-Ams. Besides handling his job at first in tip-top shape, Paul hit four times out of five trips to the plate scored three runs and drove in four.

With Joyce in the lineup, the Pan-Ams feel certain that their chances are much stronger for a win Sunday over the Sons of Italy who will come from Schenectady to play on the Saugerties road diamond.

Tianos Hard Club, Manager Jones Thinks

Manager Jones, of the Van Etten & Hogan Truckers, has advised his men to be in the best of shape for their game with the Tiano All Stars of East Kingston Monday evening at the Athletic Field, because he rates the brickyarders as real tough opponents.

Starting time of the contest is 6:15, and it is expected that there will be plenty of action from the beginning until the last man is out. Both teams have large followings, so a crowd is counted on.

The East Kingston team is composed of all Tianos, several sets of brothers being in the lineup.

Jones will repend on his regulars: McCullough, 1b; Wynn, 2b; Van Derzee, ss; Proctor, 3b; Bassett, rf; Wilson, cf; Sutton, lf; "Smoke" Johnson, pitcher; and Cleveland Thomas, catcher. Burden and Van Derzee will be reserves.

DUCKPIN RESULTS.

Rip Van Winkle League.

Grand Union 3, Leader Five 0.
High average—Dyke, Grand Union, 130.

Match Next Tuesday.

Grand Union vs. Visitations.

Mutiny on the Bounty

At the end of 1787 Lieut. William Bligh was sent to the Pacific in command of H. M. S. Bounty. His severity provoked a mutiny (April 28, 1789), as a consequence of which Bligh and 18 loyal members of the crew were set adrift. After a journey of nearly 4,000 miles in an open boat they all reached Batavia safely. The mutineers returned to Tahiti, where some of them were subsequently captured. A party, however, migrated to Pitcairn Island and founded a small colony, which was not discovered until 1808. There was then only one survivor of the original crew on the island, John Adams, who lived until 1829.

Sea Level.

Sea level is the average level of the oceans, taken as the mean between high and low water. There are slight inequalities in level in the different parts of the ocean. A report of the United States Coast and Geodetic survey giving determinations of mean sea level among the coasts of the United States, in relation to the lines of land levels carried across the continent, indicates that the Pacific is about two feet higher than the Atlantic. However, for all practical purposes, the level of the oceans may be considered uniform and it is from this standard level that the height of land and the depth of the sea is measured.

Statisticians have figured out that hunting hounds of Santa Barbara county, Cal., ran 10,000 miles in tracking down 26 mountain lions.

Local Federal Agents Seize Still In Beacon

The first seizure in several weeks reported by the Kingston prohibition office was made at 43 Newlin's Mills Road, Beacon, Thursday afternoon, when agents seized a 750 gallon still. The still, which was in operation, was located in an ice house. There was another still of 500 gallons' capacity which had not yet been set up. Seizures included a quantity of alleged alcohol, mash, home brew and supplies and equipment. Paul Trichini and Vito Biandino were arrested and arraigned before Commissioner Platt in Poughkeepsie. Biandino waived examination and was held for district court. Trichini demanded a hearing. Both were held in the Dutchess county jail until they could procure bail.

Took Pictures of Fight.

A. V. Lipgar, local photographer, attended the Baer-Schmeling fight in New York Thursday night and at the request of Charles Goodman, deputy athletic commissioner, took 32 pictures of important phases of the fight, including the finish. Mr. Lipgar is finishing up the pictures and will have them on display in his window.

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

Learned of three attempts to work the old badger game on the streets of New York. As in each instance, the method used was the same, a Park avenue incident may be cited. The manufacturer of an internationally known children's remedy, accompanied by another manufacturer, was being driven up that avenue. A traffic light stopped the car and a well-dressed, attractive woman opened the door and got in. The two manufacturers looked at her in surprise. "Don't you remember me?" she asked. "It was down in Miami—well, I've won another swimming championship since I've seen you." It happened that neither occupant of the car had been in Miami for quite some time and so they told the lady. It was her turn to look surprised. "I must have made a mistake," she said, apparently confused greatly. "I'm sorry. But you're going my way, may I ride along a few blocks with you? I'm upset—really I am."

• • •

As the car continued to roll uptown, she recovered her composure and was inclined to treat the whole matter as a joke. Finally she extended an invitation to visit her apartment and have a drink. Her technique was excellent but her invitation was refused. At the next traffic stop she got out and took up her station on the corner. In another instance, the car owner, recognizing the racket at once, ordered his chauffeur to stop the car and assist the woman out. But she didn't wait for assistance.

• • •

Harry E. Tudor, who was formerly manager of the late Frank Bostock's animal show, told me of an incident in an amusement park zoo, of which he was the manager, in Glasgow, Scotland. Among the animals was a gentle Indian elephant known as Paul. One Saturday afternoon, Tudor received a hurry call and found Paul in a wild rage. The big animal was pacified only with the greatest difficulty. Investigation disclosed the fact that a visitor had fed him a bun in which there was a large needle. Two of the keepers had seen a man who had acted suspiciously and Tudor ordered them to keep watch. But nothing happened during the rest of the season.

• • •

Early the next summer, just after the zoo had reopened, Tudor received another hurry call. Paul had knocked down a man with his trunk and only with the greatest difficulty had been restrained from killing him. Tudor sent the two keepers secretly to the hospital and they positively identified the injured man as the man who had given the elephant the needled bun. Which, Tudor holds, is proof that "the elephant never forgets."

• • •

Incidentally, the victim of Paul's revenge brought suit for damages. Tudor sprung his two surprise witnesses, the victim's carefully rehearsed testimony blew up, and the judge, instead of awarding damages, expressed regret that it wasn't in his power to send him to jail for five years. The affair received wide publicity—and during that season, more than a million Scots paid admissions to the zoo.

• • •

Reports from various sources indicate that the bicycle is coming back. Sporting goods stores and department stores report increased sales. So do those who sell clothing and shoes that go with bicycling. Many wheels—that's what we used to call them anyway—are bought by residents of Long Island, Westchester and other suburbs. A New York newspaper reports that bicyles are replacing second cars. Instead of sending a servant for the mail, laundry or on errands in a small car, heads of country estates are urging handymen to learn to pedal.

New Method of Cleaning Oats Increases Yield

Madison, Wis.—Dry cleaning of seed oats is in fashion now.

After four years of experimentation, James G. Dickson and R. D. Leith of the agricultural staff of the University of Wisconsin have found that the use of dust fungicides in treating oats for smut results in higher yields than does the formaldehyde dip treatment.

Dipping the seed in formaldehyde solution, unless done with extreme care, may result in damage to the seed, these investigators reported. They found that formaldehyde dust containing 7 per cent or more formaldehyde, mixed with the oats in dust tight containers or cement mixers, is better than the dip treatment and can be made several days in advance of sowing.

Which Came First, Hen or Egg—Solved

Madrid.—Which came first, the hen or the egg? A Spanish eugenics expert, Dr. Roberto Novoa Santos, claims to have found a solution to this time-worn problem. Neither the hen nor the egg, but the rooster.

That is what Dr. Novoa Santos told an audience at the University of Madrid. "God made the male first and then the female," he said. The address was part of the first of a series of conferences on eugenics, resumed after having been ordered discontinued during the dictatorship of Primo de Rivera.

First Typewriter Was Invented by a Printer

Many years ago a clever printer from Milwaukee, with a date for invention, was about to manufacture American woodhead. He didn't know it. He thought he was simply producing a typewriter, or as he called it, "a writing machine." His name was Christopher Latham Sholes. In March, 1933, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, he and his backer, James Densmore, were in Ilion, N. Y., where the Remington Arms company was building the first typewriter in its grandeur.

Feminists may find something symbolic in the fact that the typewriter was born at Ilion, not far miles from Seneca Falls, where in 1848 Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Stanton Cady started the American suffrage movement.

The typewriter and the telephone both made their first real bid for public recognition at the Philadelphia Centennial exposition. Both found the public rather languid. But it was not many years before the office girl and the hello girl were marching along en masse to take their place in the commercial life of the nation.

The superior dexterity of women gave them an early chance at the typewriter. Office men with Dundreary whiskers and fancy waistcoats growled at the feminine invasion. But the girls did better work on the new contraption.

When Two Irish Kings Agreed on Peace Terms

Malachi and Brian Boru were two great kings of Ireland. They quarreled and fought for a while with each other to settle the question of preeminence, and finally entered into an agreement that became fateful in Irish history. They agreed to divide Ireland between them—Malachi to rule the north, Brian the south—that was in the year 998, and there is still a north and south of Ireland. Brian Boru was not of a temperament to be satisfied with a divided kingdom. He pleaded for the unification of the island and, failing in this, he invaded Malachi's realms and brought Malachi into his camp to swear allegiance to his sovereignty. He made Malachi titular king of Meath and from that time on Brian Bru ruled undisputed in Ireland. Then a miraculous thing happened—for Ireland. After forty years of warfare, the dove of peace descended upon the Green Isle, and from conqueror Brian became an Augustus and brought about Ireland's "golden age."—Kansas City Star.

The Monroe Doctrine

Among later events in which the Monroe Doctrine proved an important factor was its acknowledgment in the League of Nations covenant in 1919, which stated that the covenant does not affect the validity of international engagements such as treaties of arbitration or regional understandings like the Monroe Doctrine for securing the maintenance of peace. The State department in 1929 published a historical review of the doctrine, and it was also invoked by some authorities in connection with the recent United States expedition in Nicaragua. Between 1829 and 1843 American statesmen gave notice that this country would not permit the transfer of Cuba to any other European power. In 1865 Seward gave formal notice that the French must leave Mexico. In 1895, in relation to the boundary dispute between Venezuela and Great Britain, the doctrine was invoked to compel arbitration. Other occasions have led to further enunciations and interpretations of the doctrine, which has become a permanent American policy.

The Bayonet

The bayonet, that cruel appendage to firearms, is said to have derived its name from the town of Bayonne in France where it was first manufactured. A Basque regiment which was engaged in fighting in the Pyrenees near Bayonne, became hard pressed. The supply of ammunition was exhausted and defeat seemed certain. Then the soldiers were directed to fasten their long knives into the barrels of their muskets and to advance upon the enemy. This they did, and the first bayonet charge was made, bringing victory to the Basques. This victory, due to the discovery of a new weapon, led to the manufacture of bayonets at Bayonne and their adoption by the armies of Europe. In England, use of the bayonet soon superseded that of the pike in battle.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Kingston Stars Had Officers as Guests

Miss Marguerite L. Lencke of Kingston Chapter, district deputy grand matron, and Leon D. Wessels of Greenville, assistant grand lecturer of the Greene and Ulster District, paid official visits to Kingston Chapter, No. 155, O. E. S. at the chapter rooms in the Masonic Building, Broadway and Strand, on Friday evening. Prior to the official visit the grand officers were entertained at a dinner at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

The meeting in the chapter rooms was attended by about 500 Eastern Stars and Master Masons. The chapter rooms had been artistically decorated for the occasion. In the East was a beautiful archway with Welcome Home in gold letters and covered with beautiful flowers, and at the gates stood Mr. and Mrs. Lencke, mother and father of the district deputy. The honored guests were introduced by Right Worthy Lillian B. Huhne, acting grand conductress, and Right Worthy Mary K. Comstock, acting grand associate conductress. As Right Worthy Marguerite L. Lencke approached the East, the gates were opened by her mother and father. They were then accorded the honors due their station. Mrs. Jessie Wolfersteig sang a Welcome Home song to Right Worthy Sister Lencke.

The officers of Kingston Chapter presented a drill, "Star of Love," preceded by the Girls of the Triangle, "Rip Van Winkle Triangle," after which a gorgeous bouquet of flowers representing the colors of degrees, was presented to Right Worthy Sisten Lencke, also a gift of money from the chapter. A gift of money was also presented to Right Worthy Brother Wessles from the chapter.

During the evening the following program was rendered:
Clog Waltz, by Shirley LeVine and Evelyn Murtha.
Toe Dance, by Jane Ball.
Group of solos, by Mildred Foffatt.
Trumpet solo by George Silkworth, accompanied on the piano by Elwood Donahue.
Baritone solo, by Kenneth Rell.

During the evening addresses were delivered by district deputy grand matron and assistant grand lecturer. Most Worthy Grace V. Merritt, past grand matron of the state of New York, Right Worthy Alice M. Scardefield, associate grand conductress, and Right Worthy Betty Keiffer gave very pleasing addresses.

Right Worthy Sister Lencke then presented the chapter with a very beautiful Silk Flag, which was graciously received by Worthy Sister Budington in behalf of the chapter. Right Worthy Sister Lencke then received the matrons of the district in the East and presented each with a gift. She also presented Right Worthy Brother Wessels with a gift.

Worthy Sister Budington then presented a gift of money from the matrons of the Greene and Ulster District to Right Worthy Sister Lencke. Worthy Sister Budington presented Sister Lencke, mother of the district deputy with a bouquet of flowers from the chapter, also a bouquet of flowers was presented to Miss Bartells, junior district deputy of the Rip VanWinkle Triangle.

A beautiful basket of flowers was presented to Worthy Sister Budington from her officers.

Type of Alder Towers Eighty Feet in Height

The alder, commonly thought of as a small tree, almost shrublike in its appearance, belongs to a family which finds among its members one giant species which towers 80 feet in the air. The tall type is the Oregon or red alder, which is found along the Pacific coast.

Its usual habitat is along the banks of streams, on the sides of canyons and far up the mountains beyond even the spruces. The reddish, brown wood of the species is often used in the manufacture of furniture.

The alder which grows along the banks of rivers and brooks is valuable in keeping the banks from crumbling through the wash of rain and the constant sweep of water at the trunks.

There is no outstanding commercial use of the alder, although it does make its way into realms of usefulness. Branches of the tree make the finest charcoal for manufacture of gunpowder while its bark yields a valuable dye. The wood itself is used in manufacturing watering troughs, pumps, piles and other wooden articles which are subjected to constant exposure to water.—Boston Herald.

The Gold Standard

The gold standard refers to the policy of a government to redeem its currency in gold on demand at any time.

REGISTRATION FOR SCOUT CAMP SHOWS INCREASE.

Scout Executive Wright reports that registration for the coming summer session of the Boy Scout camp near Cairo is way ahead of registration at this time in former years.

The Indian village at the camp is completely full for the first two weeks of camp and many registrations have been received for the two other villages.

Up to date registrations for the first two weeks account for about one-third of the capacity of the camp. There are also some reservations for the second camp period.

Annual Turkey Dinner.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Trinity M. E. Church wish to announce that the annual turkey dinner will be served in the church parlors on Wednesday, October 25.
